'Lost Army' Draft Urged to Save Dads

300,000 ON U. S. PAYROLL NON-FATHERS

Legislators Demand Induction of Single, Childless Men In Government First.

WHEELER BILL DYING

Congress Considers V-Mail Ballot For Men Now In Uniform.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The federal payroll drew the attention today of congressmen striving to keep fathers out of uniform.

Chairman May (D., Ky.) of the house military committee, an opponent of the father draft, called upon Major General Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, to explain next week an estimated 300,000 non-fathers of draft age on the government payroll.

Rep. Costello (D., Calif.), a colleague, said half this number should be in the armed forces and Rep. Harness (R., Ind.) asserted "this lost army" should meet the military's needs without requiring induction of family heads.

(Editor's note: Rep. Harness yesterday set the total of non-fathers on the federal payroll at 1,300,000 in his initial charge that potential draftees were "hiding" in various government agencies. Later he revised his figure several times bringing it down to 675,000. The consensus today was that the total was around 300,000.)

In both the senate and house, legislators apparently had abandoned their fight to outlaw father draft. An unofficial poll in the senate showed less than 20 certain votes for the Wheeler bill to block the draft until Jan. 1, 1944. Sentiment for it faded in the face of testimony by military men that they needed more manpower, backed up by the word of presidential adviser Bernard M. Baruch.

Congress meantime gave some thought to the votes of the men already in uniform. Steps were taken on legislation allowing the service men and women to vote next year by using a simplified V-mail ballot. The secretaries of war and navy were asked to give the senate elections committee their views on the idea.

Trucks Touring City Wards Today To Collect Cans

Mansfield searched its kitchens and basements today for tin cans to turn over to the city in the second tin salvage drive.

The city street department's six trucks and 18 men suspended other operations today to collect the cans in front of homes. One truck and three men will go into each of the six wards, said C. H. Hebel, city street superintendent.

There were boxes and bags of cans in front of hundreds of homes in the city early this morning and city officials expected to gather tons of cans during the day. The salvaged cans will be shipped to Cleveland where the tin coating will be removed and used in the manufacture of army equipment.

Cans left at eight collection depots in suburban areas will be picked up Saturday.

Change Clocks Sunday

Mansfield's clocks are going to be moved back an hour at 2 a. m. next Sunday and the city will return to the time it had before the war. The change will give city residents an extra hour of sleep Saturday night if they move their clocks before they go to bed. The time change is in accordance with a city ordinance which places Mansfield on Eastern Standard time from the last Sunday in September to the third Sunday in February. Schools, stores and public offices are expected to change back to standard time, but train and network radio programs continue on war time, making them an hour earlier according to Mansfield time.

Marshall's Future Still Not Settled

Washington Hears Range of Power In Hands of FDR, Churchill.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — High Washington officials asserted today that the range of authority to be given Gen. George C. Marshall as world commander-in-chief of Anglo-American forces remains an unsettled problem between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

This means that the issue of ousting Marshall as American chief-of-staff, while making him world commander, has been reopened due to the storm of criticism on Capitol Hill and in the army. It may explain the delay in any presidential announcement about Marshall's future.

The clique of presidential advisers and army officers who sought to "kick him upstairs" while stripping him of his present power over United Nations' war strategy may find their campaign ending and Marshall becoming the most powerful war figure in all the world.

Friends of Marshall now express dissatisfaction with any solution of his future save one of these two:

1. Appointment as world commander in chief, with retention of his present post as chief of staff and power to name his own acting chief when he has to leave Washington.

2. Appointment as general of the armies, a rank now held by Gen. John J. Pershing, but with supreme power over all United Nations forces, subject only to the vetoes of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Every man who knows Marshall, however, knows he is a good soldier and will take any wartime assignment given him by the president and do his best at it. He would serve his country faithfully and ably even as a divisional commander.

A confidant of Marshall informed International News Service that the army leader is deeply wounded by what he believes to be disloyalty on the part of some of his subordinates. If he continues as chief of staff, it will surprise no one in the army

DIES IN ACTION

Lieut. Jack Painter, Former Mansfielder, Shot Down.

A former Mansfielder, Lieut. Jack Painter, pilot of a heavy bomber, was killed in action over Germany, relatives here were informed today.

Lieut. Painter, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Painter, former Mansfielders now residing in Columbus, was shot down over Germany on Aug. 17, the war department said.

The flier who had several decorations had been in the air force for two years. He had been in England for four months and participated in more than 15 operational flights over Europe.

FEAR 12 DEAD

Civilians Report Crash of U. S. Army Bomber.

OSBORNE, Kan.—(INS)—Civilian authorities reported today that 12 men were killed Wednesday night when a four-motored army bomber crashed 20 miles southwest of Osborne during an electrical storm.

Although no official army report had been made of the crash, it was believed that all members of the ship's crew perished. The plane was reported to be from a California base.

REFUSES 'E'

Company Head Says Legislators Called Him 'A Crook'.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— President James F. Lincoln of the Lincoln Electric company reported he refused to accept an Army-Navy E pennant for war production in June, 1942, because the house naval affairs committee "had called me all kinds of a crook" during an investigation of the firm's bonus system.

VOX POP SHOW COMES TO CITY

Farmers To Be Interviewed During National Broadcast Monday, Oct. 4.

Mansfield will receive national attention the night of Oct. 4 when the Vox Pop radio broadcast will originate in the city.

Largely responsible for bringing the broadcast to Mansfield was Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield, whose magazine articles on the food crisis have directed attention to northcentral Ohio as a major food-producing area.

The show, which will be on a nation-wide network from 7 to 7:30 p. m., a week from Monday night, is expected to originate in one of the high school auditoriums. The Chamber of Commerce today was working out arrangements for the program.

From 10 to 15 representative Richland county farmers will be interviewed during the half-hour broadcast on the food problem with Parks Johnson and Warren Hull doing the interviewing.

Tickets will be available for the broadcast as soon as the program plans are completed. The broadcast will involve no cost to the city or the Chamber of Commerce. All expenses will be paid by the Vox Pop show which is sponsored by a national advertiser.

Sponsors of the broadcast first asked that the farmers be interviewed in a large tent on Bromfield's Malabar farm, but the broadcast scene was shifted to Mansfield when it was learned that telephone facilities would not be available in a tent studio so far from Mansfield.

HELD UNDER NUMBERS LAW

Two Suspects To Be Tried Under New Legislation.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Two men, charged with writing "numbers," are to be arraigned today in Columbus municipal court.

Under the state law, effective only since Tuesday, the penalty for conviction carries six months imprisonment and a $500 fine for first offenders.

The men, James Walters, 44, and Harvey W. Kopp, 40, were both first offenders. They were released on bond pending their arraignment.

Take It Easy on Shoes--Only Two Pairs Yearly, Now

Take it easy with the brogans, boys, it's going to be a longer time between pairs.

Six months was the period set by the Office of Price Administration (OPA) last night for stretching the next new-shoe ration stamp, which becomes valid Nov. 1. The OPA said the new stamp might have to last until May 1.

Heretofore, it's been four months between coupons.

Principal cause, OPA explained, is a critical shortage of leather due to heavy demands for military and industrial uses and for shoe repairing.

In naming Stamp No. 1 on the "airplane" sheet of ration book three as the coupon for the next period, OPA also announced that the expiration date of Stamp 18 in book one has been extended indefinitely beyond Oct. 31. Its use will overlap the new stamp, which likewise has no expiration date.

DEPUTY QUITS

Hetler Leaves Sheriff Post To Enter Defense Work.

Joseph R. Hetler, deputy sheriff, today submitted his resignation to Sheriff Frank E. Robinson.

Hetler who has been a deputy for nearly nine years will leave the sheriff's office Oct. 1 to enter defense work. He served six years as a deputy under E. P. Long and remained in that capacity when Sheriff Robinson took office in 1941.

The sheriff said today Harold Marvin, 354 Newman street, had been appointed in Hetler's place. Marvin was formerly a molder at Tappan Stove company.

'S. R. O.' Sign Goes Up for 'This Is Army' Show Tonight

After hanging out the "standing room only" sign in front of the "This is the Army" hut on the square, ticket salesmen today totaled up $5,000 — Mansfield's contribution to Army Emergency Relief.

More than 1,600 Mansfielders will attend the premiere of the picture "This is the Army" at 8:30 tonight at the Ohio theater. All proceeds from the picture which is based on the original army stage show, will go to the Army Emergency Relief fund.

But Mansfield will see more than the film. At 3 p. m. this afternoon the army will take over the city presenting a true picture of army maneuvers on land and air.

The largest formation of Flying Fortresses ever to fly over the city is expected over the city between 5 and 5:30 p. m. According to arrangements made with Colonel J. S. Gullet, of Lockbourne air base, a routine training flight of Fortresses may be directed over the city.

At 3 p. m. jeeps, peeps and an honor guard of military police are scheduled to arrive at the hut in

NON-STRIKERS AID IN CRISIS

Move Freight as Walkout Hits Main Transportation Line In Los Angeles Area.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The White House announced today that the special emergency panel named by President Roosevelt to study wage adjustments for employes of the Pacific Electric Company, would not take the case under consideration while the strike exists.

(By International News Service)

LOS ANGELES — Less than three hours after Pacific Electric company trainmen, scorning last minute presidential action, went on strike at 2 a. m. today, the company had made up 25 crews of non-striking employes and was moving some freight to various points in the Los Angeles area.

Company spokesmen said that they were continuing their efforts to round up more crews in an attempt to restore as much traffic as possible.

Don Sheets, executive vice-chairman of the local union's grievance committee, reiterated the union's order that all men on the picket lines were to cause no violence and that should any crew wish to go to work they could pass freely through the lines.

A few sailors waiting for the 3:15 a. m. train to leave for San Pedro were stranded when it failed to go out, but the passengers ordinarily on the run—most of them sailors returning to their San Pedro base—had anticipated the strike and had made other arrangements to get home.

The strike dealt a paralyzing blow to the already over-taxed transportation system of the sprawling, war-vital Los Angeles area.

The grievance committee of the Los Angeles local of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen stated bluntly that it "did not like" Mr. Roosevelt's directive, which named a special panel to study wage adjustments for the trainmen and report back to Fred N. Vinson, economic stabilization director.

"The executive order only establishes another board—in fact, a third one to meddle in this case," said Sheets.

Charges Attorney Padded Highway Bill by $2,175

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today challenged highway department vouchers under which a Cleveland attorney allegedly would have made a profit of from $2,175 to $3,280 on work done by a title abstracting company for $2,500 in obtaining right-of-way for construction of a highway to an aircraft plant at the Cleveland airport.

Ferguson said the Cleveland district office of the state highway department hired Louis J. Doria, Cleveland attorney, to obtain 185 certificates of title to clear a right-of-way for the road construction.

MILLION YET TO BE RAISED FOR BOND GOAL

County Total Increased By $479,010; 3 Purchasers Invest $200,000.

SUCCESS LOOMING

Date For Conclusion of Drive Extended To Oct. 2; Extra Billions Sought.

"Past the five million mark and goal to go" described the Richland county Third War Loan drive today as subscriptions mounted to $5,056,434.75.

In the six remaining days of the drive Richland countians will be called upon to buy $1,013,566 worth of bonds to put the drive over its $6,060,000 goal.

Three large industrial purchases amounting to $93,450 were included in yesterday's report of $479,010.75. Largest purchases yesterday were made by three subscribers who bought a total of $200,000 worth of two per cent treasury notes.

E bond purchasers added $53,593 to their total as an additional 1,144 persons subscribed to the drive.

The national drive picked up speed today and rolled past the 80 per cent mark with 12 billion dollars of its 15 billion goal subscribed.

Now in the 15th day of the largest money-raising campaign yet attempted, the treasury announced an upswing in bond sales to small investors.

"If the pace does not slow down, we'll be able to tell our enemies that the rank and file of America's unarmed army of the home front is solidly backing the attack at the battle fronts," Ted R. Gamble, national director of the drive, said.

The date for conclusion of the drive was extended from Sept. 30 to Oct. 2 by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr. who said in a broadcast last night that "every extra billion will end the war just that much sooner."

Morgenthau said the last days of the drive would be dedicated to "Gen. Mark Clark's gallant American Fifth army" at Salerno.

FLIES EAST

Mrs. FDR Takes Army Plane To New York.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who has completed a tour of the war zones in the south and southwest Pacific, arrived at LaGuardia field early today aboard an army plane.

Mrs. Roosevelt left the airport in an automobile, presumably bound for her Manhattan apartment. She had made the trip by plane from San Francisco and planned to visit her eldest son, James, in New York.

Mrs. Roosevelt returned to the mainland yesterday in an army Liberator, ending a war-theater trip of more than 23,000 miles with 17 island stops. She will report at once, she said, to Norman Davis, national chairman of the Red Cross, on her trip.

"Everywhere," she said, "I found the boys interested in things at home and concerned about them. None ever talked about what he was going to get out of the war—such as bonus or special consideration."

DREAM TALK?

Taft Raps Attempt To Spread Four Freedoms Over World.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Sen. Robert A. Taft says talk of carrying the four freedoms into all parts of the world is "talking in a dream language."

The Ohio Republican told a Blue network radio audience during the Town Hall program last night: "If we can crusade for the four freedoms, Russia can crusade for Communism." The senator also expressed opposition to a British-American-Russian postwar military alliance.

WILL VISIT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Navy Secretary Frank Knox is scheduled to visit Cleveland Oct. 18 as part of a WAVES recruiting drive, Lt. Comdr. Ralph H. Domba announced.

Reds Threaten To Crack Main Nazi Defenses

Russians Shelling 3 Big Citadels Along Dnieper River Line.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW — (INS) — Russian forces were reported today to have crossed the upper reaches of the Dnieper river east of the great Nazi-held base of Smolensk at the town of Pridnieprovskaya.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW —(U.P.)— Military sources said today that Russian assault troops had virtually invested Smolensk and its fall was imminent. To the south Soviet armies were massing on the east bank of the Dnieper river at several points.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW — Red armies swept triumphantly onto the east bank of the Dnieper river at several points today and the momentum of their great offensive threatened momentarily to breach the main German defense lines across eastern Europe. Soviet front dispatches reported.

(Nazi broadcasts said the Russians had tried to force the middle reaches of the Dnieper on the Kiev-Dniepropetrovsk line at a number of places. They minimized the efforts, however, claiming that they were made by advanced elements and were thwarted.)

The last major German bases east of the Dnieper had been overrun and the Russians were pushing to the river on a wide front preparatory to storming its main fortresses in a quick-capitalization on the most sensational successes ever scored by the Red army.

From less than 10 miles away the Russians were reported shelling the Dnieper citadels of Smolensk, Kiev and Dniepropetrovsk.

The army organ Red Star said the German defenses below captured Poltava had been "smashed decisively" and the enemy had been thrown back from the heart of the Ukraine to the Dnieper.

A Pravda correspondent reported from Poltava that Soviet assault forces were pursuing large German units toward the Dnieper and had cut off and wiped out several groups. About 36,000 Russian civilians being driven before the retreating Nazi army toward Germany were freed by the speed

Fury of Battle In Salerno Sector Mounts Hourly, Allies Gain.

BULLETIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AFRICA — (AP) — The Germans are continuing their northward withdrawal of Corsica, a French communique said today. Allied forces have occupied Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio while Allied planes intercepted German attempts at an aerial evacuation.

(By International News Service)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—The United States Fifth army launched a full-scale offensive north of Salerno today to clear the way for a drive on Naples.

A three-mile advance was chalked up only a few hours after the attack began.

A spokesman for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower made known that the Fifth army is on the move "in strength" but is encountering savage resistance.

(Editor's note: A CBS report from Algiers said the American thrust had caught the Germans "off balance.")

Fighting in front of blazing Naples, whose pall of smoke was visible from the American lines, the Germans threw in extensive artillery, mortars and machine-guns in their grim struggle to stem the American advance.

The battle mounted in intensity by the hour. Reinforcements have been pouring into both the German and Allied lines during the past week.

Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's battered forces were reformed and regrouped to meet the onslaught. It was evident the enemy had concentrated every spare man and weapon in establishment of an iron ring around Naples.

Immediate objective of the American attack is a string of heights north of Salerno whose capture will place Lieut. Gen. Mark Wayne Clark's Fifth army in a dominant position for the assault on Naples.

On the British sector, demolitions continue to be the only opposition offered. The farthest point of the British advance is at Altamura, which has been taken.

The advance to Altamura facilitated capture of the key-point of Matera, where a 1,200-foot rise

SEQUEL: RAF Batters 4 Nazi Cities After Heavy U. S. Raids

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—In their second heavy blow in 24 hours against Nazi industrial and transportation centers, a fleet of big RAF bombers blasted four German cities last night, heavily bombing the twin towns of Mannheim-Ludwigshafen and hitting Darmstadt, 35 miles northeast of Mannheim, and Aachen, near Cologne.

Thirty-two bombers failed to return.

The twin cities at the junction of the Rhine and Nekar rivers shuddered under the impact of 1,500 long tons (1,730 U. S. tons) in 45 minutes—17 tons a minute less than the record load dumped on Hamburg—in a sequel to the Wednesday night attack on Hannover.

It was the second big attack in less than three weeks on Mannheim - Ludwigshafen, Germany's second largest inland port, through which large quantities of coal and other vital supplies are transshipped to Italy. Aachen, hit 16 times before, is a key railroad and highway point through which moves much of Hitler's supplies and reinforcements for the west wall.

The three-pronged attack rounded out smashes by American Flying Fortresses and medium Allied bombers yesterday to make the 24-hour raids probably the heaviest day and night operations of the war.

Nantes, French Atlantic port, was raided twice in daylight yes-

ROCKED: Finschhafen Shelled As Patrols Drive to Airfield

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHEAST PACIFIC—Australian artillery pounded the Japanese today in the New Guinea coastal base at Finschhafen, arching shells over frontline patrols which have beaten down rapidly fading enemy resistance to reach the edge of an airfield two miles north of their objective.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur thus confronted the Japanese with the threatened loss of their third air base since Sept. 12 in a jungle sector where the enemy already has expended more than 12,000 men.

Today MacArthur permitted release of the first details of the amphibious operation against Finschhafen, only 70 over-water miles southwest of New Britain, a key position of the Japanese.

Australians began landing on a beach six miles north of Finschhafen at dawn Wednesday, six days after the fall of Lae and 10 days after the capture of Salamaua.

American warships bombarded enemy positions beyond the beachhead. Bombers dropped 21 tons of explosives on Finschhafen. Attack planes fired 48,000 rounds of ammunition.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—The manpower shortage is so acute in war production centers that the War Manpower Commission labor priorities plan, now in effect on the Pacific coast, is to be introduced in other communities where shortages are severe.

Priorities on manpower will be increasingly necessary. No congressional suspension of the drafting of fathers is likely. Army and navy chiefs have given no ground at all under pressure for slowing down inductions. Production therefore must look to an ever smaller reservoir of manpower, although 500,000 new workers will be needed on the Pacific coast alone in the next six months.

Clapper

Charles E. Wilson, vice chairman of the War Production Board, is back from the Pacific coast where he surveyed operation of the WMC labor priorities system which has just been installed on the basis of the plan devised at Buffalo, N. Y., and strongly recommended in the recent Baruch report. He is preparing to introduce it in some other localities.

This plan is locally operated through a community manpower priorities committee and an area production urgency committee. On these are local representatives of the army and navy, and war agencies concerned. One committee decides which production contracts are most urgent. The other committee fixes the labor priorities of employers, listing the local business establishments which may expand employment to an established ceiling, those which may maintain their employment through replacement hiring, and those from which workers may be drawn for more urgent jobs.

Some difficulties arise from the attempt by labor unions to continue business as usual. Service trades are hit by the manpower priorities system. For instance, elevator operators are being cut down and workers transferred to more productive jobs. Their union officers, who depend on monthly dues, object to losing members.

Some question arises whether the unions in the aircraft factories and shipyards should continue to charge a large initiation fee, often $25, for workers transferred under the manpower priorities plan. The Baruch report stated that some west coast plants have a labor turnover of 100 per cent a year. Thus union initiation fees are taking a relatively large cut under a system which is fair enough in normal times, but which may become a racket when insisted upon in these abnormal circumstances.

The incentive payment plan is counted upon to improve production. It is being employed now in some 300 plants around the country. Where this plan is in effect, if a plant or department increases its production, a wage bonus is automatically given. For instance, a 20 per cent increase in output would mean a 10 per cent wage increase for all involved under the ratio usually applied.

Unquestionably, production output per worker could be increased. Jack & Heintz, the fabulous producers of aircraft accessories at Cleveland, have a lavish scheme of bonuses and recreational benefits and have had extravagant payrolls. Yet WPB officials find that their unit cost of production is far less than that of the manufacturer who designed the product. High individual production in that plant appears to be a factor.

It is appalling to come back from the fighting areas and find arguments going on which indicate that profits and union rules come first, and output second. When you are around combat forces, it is hard to imagine such a state of mind.

Our record-breaking shipbuilding and airplane building have turned this war around our way in the last six months. If every worker could truly feel that he had something to do with that perhaps he would take a new pride in achievement.

The Russians are right when they say there is no difference between the soldier at the front and the worker at the rear. Both are in the war. Churchill says the bloodiest fighting is still to come. That means a harder war on the production front as well.

With fathers going to war, fewer men are left to do more work.

13-DAY-OLD TOT RIDES PLANE IN MERCY FLIGHT

Baby Girl With Upside-Down Stomach Being Flown East For Operation.

(By United Press)

BUFFALO—Its supply of oxygen replenished, a Civil Air Patrol plane converted into a flying hospital was ready today to resume its mercy flight—carrying 13-day old Beverely Helen Primus to Fall River, Mass., to have her upside-down stomach corrected.

The baby spent the night at Buffalo Children's hospital resting comfortably in an oxygen tent, beneath which she has been kept since birth nearly two weeks ago.

Dr. John Griffin, of Des Moines, who delivered Beverly, was accompanying the infant on the flight. Her father, Lee D. Primus, Drake university law student, planned to follow later by transport plane.

Awaiting at Fall River was Dr. P. E. Truesdale, a gray-haired, 69-year-old physician who has performed 14 of the recorded 57 operations for correction of an upside-down stomach. He operated on 10-year-old Alice Jane McHenry of Omaha, eight years ago. Her condition was corrected and she since has recovered completely.

Dr. Griffin asked the veteran physician's aid when an examination revealed that the baby was born with a hernia of the diaphragm on the right side, which resulted in an upside-down stomach.

Maj. Don C. Johnston, wing commander of the CAP, made arrangements with the Army Air Force to permit the "emergency mercy ship" over restricted territory. A tiny cot and an oxygen tank were installed in the plane and the baby, still in its oxygen tent, was taken aboard.

Dr. Truesdale declined to comment on the case until after he examined the baby. A spokesman for the American Medical association at Chicago said however, that there was a "very good chance" the operation will be successful. He said the patients usually survive, although many unpredictable factors are involved in the operation which is seldom performed.

RICKENBACKER SEES AIRLINES AS PEACE AID

Praises Possibilities After Return From Visit To Russian Front.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker expressed the conviction today that America's expanding global air transportation power can be one of the chief means of preserving peace in the postwar world.

The nation's No. 1 air ace in World war I, and hero of an amazing episode in World war II, declared that a sane use of future aerial communication can prevent World war III.

"If we had had the global transportation 10 years ago that we have today," Rickenbacker said, "we would not be at war.

"If we are sane enough and unselfish enough to recognize and properly use the prospects of communication that will be available in the future, we can avert World war III.

Rickenbacker recently returned from an aerial mission to Soviet Russia. While there he visited the Orel front when the Russians stopped the German summer offensive and turned it into a counteroffensive that has driven the German armies nearly back to the Dnieper. He visited Russian aircraft factories and saw both American P-39 and P-40 planes and Russian Stormovik tank-busting fighters in action.

The Russian flight was his third major air mission for Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson in the present war. The others took him to the fronts in Great Britain and the southwest Pacific.

Rickenbacker may soon be off on another equally important mission to another major war front.

Today, however, the noted airman was in the nation's capital to make proposals for postwar aviation in an effort to see that American air pioneering is not permitted to languish after the war is over.

Rickenbacker believes that air travel of the future, the blueprint of which is in sight today, can be destroy the old frontiers of time and space that nations will be brought together, and future wars banished.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—One great appeal is conspicuously lacking in the preachments to the young people of the United States concerning the brave new world of the future, of which they will be the masters. There are freedoms up to seven now, compensated, of course, by sacrifices of ordinary human individual liberties which have been instinctive in the United States; but there has been no mention of loyalty. This is a sensitive topic in a nation whose marriages to the extent of one in six end in the divorce courts for loyalty begins in the home and is the cement in the family unit which is the basic unit of civilization.

Pegler

That loyalty is to be observed every day on the railroads and around the military camps in which American youth is training to fight. Young wives go rattling over the railroads, many of them under hardship conditions, from New England to San Diego, from Minnesota to Florida, to be close to their young husbands until the last possible moment. Some have babies in their arms. Many carry their own hand baggage for lack of manpower in the stations or for lack of money to pay the porters; they sit up day and night in hot, ill-ventilated trains and when they arrive often there is no decent housing for them. Many of them take jobs in war factories or in restaurants or hotels who might remain in reasonable comfort and security at home, in order to have a few more hours together and some of the most poignant little stories from overseas have been glimpses of the longing of young soldiers to see their wives, and babies, born since they went away.

Youth has not had an inspiring public example of this first loyalty in recent years, and it has received nowhere in the propaganda of that which might be called the political youth movement the emphasis that has been given to political strategy, economic problems and the freedoms. Conspicuous families, including leading personalities of middle-age and beyond have been disrupted in our own country and, in Britain, a scandalous round-robin of wife trading culminated in a historical political smash in which those who upheld an old-fashioned concept of family loyalty were abused from the "liberal" side for repudiating an example which would have reduced the family to the status of the animals in the barnyard. They were called "tories," "reactionaries" and "fascists."

Indeed, not even loyalty to the United States is now placed first in the program for the future which is presented to youth in the war. Instead it is urged that this youth fight for a new world and a list of objectives called freedoms the achievement of which would abrogate much of the fundamental human freedom or liberty on which American life is based. Men who have placed the United States first, and alone, have been berated as friends of the enemy as though a narrow and exclusive devotion to their own country to the neglect of Siam or Ethiopia were somehow un-American.

Strangely, family loyalty, the integrity of the home in which young Americans receive their teaching, example and inspiration, has been avoided as a topic too delicate or embarrassing for discussion. To stand by and rescue a wounded buddy in action is a great thing, but on the other hand, to call off a marriage and deprive children of the leadership and companionship of one parent and to set them an intimate and deeply impressive example of selfishness is not even questionable conduct. In the more radical areas of politics, apostasy to a political belief or objective, or to the personality of a leader will be condemned as an unforgivable, personal crime by some persons who nevertheless see nothing worse in the repudiation of a marriage for casual, selfish reasons than the violation of a treaty of convenience by a European state.

This war has greatly stimulated marriage among American youth and it is possible that the ratio of divorces established by civilians will be maintained by them. Certainly youth movement has not regarded family integrity as any of its business. But, fortunately, only a small proportion of this youth has ever had any contact with organized youth under planned political leadership and the majority, whether poor, middle class or rich, carry over into marriage the inspiration not of worldly, prominent personalities but that of their own humdrum, loyal parents in their little American homes.

CIO ORGANIZERS UNDER ARREST

Four Held For Soliciting Union Members Without Permit; Test Law.

(By International News Service)

PELLY, Tex. — R. J. Thomas, Detroit, president of the United Automobile Workers union, and three other CIO organizers were out on $100 bail bonds each today, charged with soliciting members for a labor organization without a permit.

They were arrested last night as they stepped from the platform in front of the city at Pelly after they had addressed an open air audience of 1,200 persons.

Union leaders termed the arrests as a test of the statute requiring any person soliciting members for a labor organization to register with the secretary of state.

Chief Deputy Sheriff W. B. Milner and three deputies were waiting for the labor leaders as the latter urged all employes of the Humble Oil and Refining company's nearby Baytown refinery to join the oil workers union.

As the labor leaders stepped down from the platform, Milner asked them for their permit.

"Then I shall have to arrest you," Milner said and escorted the four to his automobile, while hostile voices from the crowd jeered.

Thomas, who had been under a temporary court restraining order forbidding him to solicit union membership, had said he would not heed the court's edict. He branded the statute unconstitutional.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfielders have not been very responsive to the calls for boarding homes for deaf, blind, and crippled children who must attend special classes in Mansfield if they are to go to school at all. Homes are needed for three out-of-town deaf children before they can be admitted to Carpenter school. The state has approved their admittance but the children must have approved homes to board in. Persons having such homes may either contact Miss Mercurio at Carpenter school or Orio Smith at O. P. S.

A recent issue of a Miami, Fla., paper carried a story about Staff Sgt. Tommy May, son of Mr. and Mrs. William May of Shelby, and his "encounter" with Major General J. Garesche Ord. It seems that after that meeting he feels swell about the U. S. Army and especially its officers. Meeting Sgt. May outside a hangar at the 36th street army air base, Gen. Ord greeted him in a friendly manner and extended his hand. From then on the two army men, a general and a sergeant, chatted like any other two men and it all ended with Sgt. May running after some thermos bottles of cold water for the general who wanted to take them aboard a plane with him, not because he was ordered to but because he wanted to.

The Lucas Community Garden club harvest show will go on Saturday night come rain, snow or frost. This assurance came from committee members who have been besieged with queries as to whether the exhibition had been cancelled because of recent frosts. "We may not have as much to display," explained Miss Effie Dome, general chairman, "but the show will go on." Garden produce will be auctioned, country store fashion, at the conclusion of the affair with the proceeds added to the club's "Victory Fund" which is contributed periodically to some phase of the war effort.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Says Bill McKee in the Ashland Times-Gazette:

"Just about 11 months ago the local sport scene was somewhat steamed up by a charge in Marion that Ashland high had sent scouts to spy on Marion Harding football practices.

"Such a thing would have been quite unethical, sort of athletic window peeping, and completely unthinkable any place where the rules are observed.

"Ashland high authorities promptly and emphatically denied the charge and after while Marionites admitted they were talking through their hats.

"Now they're claiming in Mansfield that one of the reasons Harding was able to defeat the Tygers in the game Saturday night was because Marion had scouted Mansfield's scrimmage with Galion. This, if true, was as wrong as the business Ashland was falsely accused of doing last season.

"Whether or not the Mansfield claim is true I wouldn't know, but it will be interesting to see what Marion does about it now that the shoe is on the other foot."

The answer, Bill, is that Marion probably will not do a thing about it, because no formal protest will be made by Mansfield high school.

"You know how I feel about it," says Coach Paul Snyder of the Tygers, and his tone of voice leaves little doubt about his feelings.

"If we had won, I certainly would have gone to bat with Marion on the subject, but since we lost it would only look like we were trying to build an alibi and were taking a crybaby attitude. And the boys are not alibying. They feel that they lost the game themselves."

There is no doubt in the Tyger camp that Mansfield was thoroughly scouted by Marion in that practice scrimmage with Galion.

A Marion substitute tackle flatly told Tyger Center Bob Miller after the game that the Tygers had been scouted, Miller reports.

And the Tygers say that early in the game Marion players started asking them when they were going to use a certain system of defense, and that the Prexies knew the signals for that defense.

"It's too bad," says Snyder. "I thought we had the makings of a fine rivalry with Marion."

Reds Birds Take Edge In Series

Need One More Win To Eliminate Brews.

With a one-game edge over their American Association playoff rivals, Indianapolis and Columbus needs only a win tonight to qualify to meet each other in the loop's last playoff phase which will determine a representative in the Little World series.

Indianapolis won its second game in the 3-out-of-5 sets last night by beating Toledo, 6-4, while Columbus grabbed a two to one margin over the league champion, Milwaukee, with a 6-1 victory.

With the count locked 4-4, the Tribe scored twice in the eighth inning after filling the bases and shelling pitcher Sid Peterson from the mound.

Preacher Roe scattered a mere four blows among the heavy hitting Milwaukee batters while his Columbus mates pounded Owen Scheetz for eight, including damaging three-baggers by Chet Welczorek and Emil Varban

Flag Day Arrives For Yanks

New York Can Clinch Pennant This Afternoon.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE long delayed day on which the New York Yankees can clinch the American league pennant under their own power in one game has arrived. All the bombers need is to beat the Detroit Tigers this afternoon.

They smothered the Tigers for the second straight time yesterday with Lefty Marius Russo showing world series form in a two-hit 1-0 shutout. The only run of the game came on three singles in the first inning and caused Rufus Gentry his second 1-0 defeat since joining the Tigers earlier this month.

This success and Cleveland's split of a doubleheader at Boston eliminated the Indians mathematically. The Washington Senators, who had held on stubbornly to a remote pennant possibility, collapsed before the St. Louis Browns 12-3 in a night game.

Clevelan was overpowered by the Red Sox 13-7 in the first game, but the Tribe took the nightcap 6-4 with a 15-hit attack of its own.

In the other American league game Orval Grove pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 5-2 verdict over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Alpha Brazle gave up three runs and Harry Brecheen a fourth as the Dodgers defeated the Cardinals 4-3 for Whitlow Wyatt's 10 consecutive triumph and 14th of the year. Wyatt, although he hurt his knee early in the game and limped during the late innings, allowed just eight hits.

The outcome enabled the Dodgers to hold second place in the National league against a 3-2 triumph by the Cincinnati Reds over the New York Giants in a night game.

Pittsburgh was beaten 2-1 by the five-hit hurling of Jim Tobin of the Boston Braves and the Chicago Cubs scored six runs in the sixth to nose out the Phillies 8-7.

GETS TACKLE JOB

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(AP)—Bill Hess, former Ohio University football player and now a naval trainee, replaced Dolph Schwenk as a first string tackle in yesterday's Yale dummy scrimmage.

Keltner's Bat Helps Indians

Tribe Splits Even as Ken Returns To Action.

BOSTON —(AP)— Ken Keltner has returned to action after a six weeks' vacation recovering from a spike wound and his bat accounted for five runs yesterday as the Cleveland Indians split a double header with the Boston Red Sox.

The Tribe's third baseman drove in two runs as the Redskins dropped the opener 13-7, and added three more in the 6-4 triumph in the nightcap. Ken also scored three markers himself.

The split with the Red Sox mathematically eliminated the third place Indians from the pennant race but Washington's loss to the St. Louis Browns enabled them to gain half a game in their drive for the runner-up spot. They now trail the Nats by two-and-a-half games.

The Sox slugged Mel Harder and Steve Gromek for 15 safeties in the opener. Heber (Dick) Newsome shut out the Tribe for seven innings and went into the ninth with a 13 to 1 lead. The Indians suddenly found their batting eyes in the final stanza and knocked Newsome out of the box with a six-run blast that forced Manager Joe Cronin to call on Mike Ryba.

They continued their slugging in the nightcap, collecting 13 blows and five of their six runs off Tex Hughson in six innings. The other tally was added at the expense of George Woods in the ninth.

Ed (Specs) Klieman, who won 23 games for Baltimore, will hurl for the Indians in the third game of the series today. Joe Dobson, a former Redskin, is his opponent.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Clinging to a chance to return to second place, the Cincinnati Reds try today to take up where they left off last night against the New York Giants.

They left off at a good point for the 2,088 fans, the smallest night attendance in the history of night baseball in its major league birthplace. The point was one out in the ninth inning, when young Chuck Aleno, up for another big time trial, pinch-singled in the run to give the Reds a 3-2 victory over the Giants.

Lonnie Frey opened the inning with a good bunt and was sacrificed to second. Then Chuck, who hit safely in 17 consecutive games when the Reds had him up last year, batted for Estel Crabtree and the ball game ended in a hurry.

Johnny Vander Meer got out of hand in the top half of the ninth and gave Gus Mancuso a single and the next two men walks. Clyde Shoun came in and Johnny Rucker singled the tying run home.

Vandy himself scored the run that should have won in the fifth inning. He and Marshall pulled a double steal during a strikeout. The Reds scored in the first on a walk, a single, and a double play to match the Giants opening run made on three singles.

The victory kept the Reds a half-game behind the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers.

Buckeyes Lift Lid Tomorrow

Scoring Bee Foreseen In Seahawk Contest.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State university's football fans will find out tomorrow whether their Bucks look like 43 bucks or 43 cents. Incidentally, there are 43 Bucks on the '43 squad.

Coach Paul E. Brown's kiddy-corps drew a "toughie" for the opener, being scheduled to clash with the star-spangled Iowa Pre-Flight Seahawk squad which just a week ago wrecked Illinois 32 to 18.

The Ohio outfit is composed of five 4-F veterans who saw some service with last year's Big Ten and national champs, and a flock of freshmen, most of whom are only 17 years old and a couple of months out of high school.

Against that array the Seahawks will present a squad with at least five professional players bulwarked by college stars from all parts of the country. The invaders have a definite edge in weight, experience and age.

Last week, against Illinois, Coach Don Faurot of the 'Hawks started an all-cadet team. The starters were in the game just 44 seconds when the officers came aboard to take over against the Illini. Brown expects the same thing to occur here, which explains why he isn't too enthused over the fact the Bucks will be practically even in weight against the Pre-Flight starters.

The lineups, announced today, show the 'Hawk starters will average 187 in the line and 179 in the backfield, just one pound over the Bucks in each department. However, when the officers take over, it is a different story. Ohio State will have its best in there at the start, and at the finish too unless injuries pop up, while the invaders have their talent on what is nominally their second team.

On the 'Hawk second string are such luminaries as End Perry Schwartz of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Center Vincent Banonis of the Detroit Lions, Guard Nick Kerosiotis of the Columbus Bulls, and Halfbacks Dick Todd of the Washington Redskins and Frank Maznicki of the Chicago Bears.

The Bucks, boasting a fleet but inexperienced all-freshman backfield, are expected to show scoring power. The Ohio defense isn't the best ever seen in the stadium, and pre-game indications were that a scoring spree would usher in the campaign.

The game gets under way at 2 p. m., and attendance is expected to hover around the 25,000 mark.

Rams Open Home Grid Season This Evening

Tygers Travel to Elyria After Revenge For Last Year's Defeat

IT'S THE SECOND WEEK of the high school football season, but it's the opener tonight for fans of the Mansfield area as Madison high lifts its home lid against a big and powerful Class "A" team from Delaware under the lights on Ram Hill.

Mansfield high's Tygers will be making their second road trip of the season, traveling to Elyria for revenge for a 27-13 trouncing a year ago.

Coach Jeff DeHaven at Madison was optimistic over his team's chances tonight against Delaware, but not overly so. "We have all our cripples of last week ready to go tonight with the exception of Eccles," DeHaven said this morning, "and of course we've been strengthened by the addition of John Schuttera and Harvey Smith.

"The scoreless tie Delaware played against Marion St. Mary's last week may not make Delaware look too tough, but my scouts tell me that Marion has practically the same team it had last year, and Delaware looked good against the veteran opposition," the Madison mentor continued.

"Delaware has a big team with two fast backs and plenty of power through the line, and we'll have to be at our best to stop them tonight."

Probable lineups for tonight's game which starts at 8:15 are:

| Delaware | Pos. | Madison |
|---|---|---|
| Bills | LE | B. Conroy |
| Long | LT | Dunham |
| Weber | LG | Higgins |
| Baker | C | Schuttera |
| Wilson | RG | Smith |
| Schaffer | RT | Campbell |
| Martin | RE | Snyder |
| Watkins | QB | Harfman |
| Cowgill | LH | Anthony |
| McCleery | RH | Bader |
| Bell | FB | Erdenberger |

Biggest boy on the Delaware team is Schaffer, 225 pound tackle, while the visitors will average 166 pounds to 154 for Madison, which probably means that Madison will have to make full use of its speed.

At Elyria today Coach Ike Trubey was telling the fans that Mansfield should be a slight favorite for tonight's game, pointing to the Tygers' seven starting lettermen. However, only two of the Tygers were regular starters last year, Bill Lewis and Roland Schmidt, although most of them saw considerable action.

Coach Paul Snyder has made one change in his starting lineup from that which opened against Marion, putting Sam Musille at left end and moving Joe Komjenovich to tackle.

The probable starting lineups:

Elyria: Henry and Joviak, ends; Meshke and Williams, tackles; Plas and Opra, guards; Schoenbachler, center; Browne, quarterback; Yarsa and Bornino, halfbacks, and Hopkins, fullback.

Mansfield: S. Musille and Lewis, ends; Komjenovich and Jacobs, tackles; Parry and Schafer, guards; Miller, center, Dent, quarterback; McBride and R. Schmidt, halfbacks, and D. Musille, fullback.

Captain John Bara, Elyria tackle, and Tom Mynchenberg, halfback, are benched by injuries, but Mynchenberg is expected to be in shape for some action. Mike Zivkoff, halfback, is still out of the Tyger lineup.

The Mansfield-Elyria rivalry is one of recent vintage, with Elyria holding a 3-2 edge in victories and a three-point margin in total scoring.

The record:

| Year | Tygers | Elyria |
|---|---|---|
| 1924 | 7 | 18 |
| 1925 | 0 | 18 |
| 1940 | 7 | 6 |
| 1941 | 39 | 0 |
| 1942 | 13 | 27 |
| Total | 66 | 69 |

Mansfield won 2, lost 3.

By GIL KARP

COLUMBUS—(INS)— Cecil Souders, varsity "O" winner in 1942, is slated to get the starting assignment at right end for the Ohio State eleven, opposite Jack Dugger, in Saturday's opener against the Iowa Seahawks.

This will not be his only assignment this season. When the Bucks' go into punt formation this fall, fans will be treated to one of the "rarities" of the gridiron game.

They will see End Cecil Souders, usually called Cy, pull out of the line and drop into the kicking slot in the backfield.

Although it is not rare for a lineman to have kicking ability, it is unusual in modern football when a top notch college grid squad does not come up with a few capable punters who are backfield men. But this is war, so chalk it up as just one of the many unusual sights that will be seen on the gridiron this fall.

Cy has shown in practice sessions that he has the ability to give the pigskin long rides down the field. However, when he is being rushed he has a tendency to hurry his punts and consequently spoils many of them.

Cy is a fine "mechanical" player at the end slot and is equally good on offense as on the defense. One of his main assets is keeping the opposition from "turning" his end.

Souders, a product of Bucyrus, alternated between the second and third teams in '42. He is a well-built young man, 22 years old, is one inch over six feet and weighs 190 pounds.

During his high school days at Bucyrus he played end, fullback and quarterback under the tutoring of Coach Elden Armbrust. In 1939 he was honored by being elected captain of the Ohio All-star eleven which played the Florida All-stars in an intersectional game.

Cy believes that making the All-Star squad was the most outstanding event in his high school grid days and he did it while the Bucyrus team was having an unsuccessful season.

For his touchest opponent in his prep days Souders selected a name that is quite familiar to followers of Ohio State's football teams. It is Jim Langhurst, then a fullback at Willard high school, who later was to become one of the best in a long line of # the enemy's just over the hill!

MAYBE I'm your boy—or the boy next door. You know, Mary's sweetheart, Joan's husband, Timmy's daddy. Your son, Father! Your boy, Mother!

Anyway, I've got something to say to you. I've got to make you understand.

This is it. This is zero. This is INVASION!

I'm here, with a million other boys just like me. We're your INVASION forces. And we're going to stay. It wasn't easy getting here, and it is going to be a lot harder before we're through.

WE'RE GIVING ALL WE'VE GOT

I said we were going to stay. I promise that, even if it means the thing—well, the thing we don't like to talk about. Because we're giving all we've got: Our minds, our strength, our blood.

But you see, this isn't going to be enough. Not unless those planes we need snarl down out of the sky on the enemy just over there. Unless those tanks get here. Unless the supply ships get through. Unless there are enough bullets for this rifle.

YOU'RE ON THE INVASION FRONT NOW!

It's that extra $100 War Bond, all of them together, making up the $15 billion worth they're asking you to buy in September, that will prove that you are on the INVASION front with him.

Your part is at least one extra $100 Bond during the Drive—at least $100. Of course, that's in addition to your regular bond buying. A $100 Bond is the rock bottom figure. Some of you will have to invest thousands to put this Drive across. Take it out of your pay check—or out of that nest egg you were saving for a rainy day.

All you can spare is too little, all you've got is just going to be enough.

Look at it this way: You won't be giving anything. You will be investing in VICTORY—and your future.

Things like safety for your family and money after the war to buy a new home, or to educate your children.

You're buying a stake in VICTORY—and that means America, yours and mine!

I guess that's all I've got time to tell you now. The enemy is waiting, just over the hill. Don't keep us waiting for you!

CROWN QUEEN AT BUCYRUS CORN FESTIVAL

Ceremonies Highlight of First Day of Three-Day Annual Event.

BUCYRUS—Six years ago a group of civic minded men decided to see if Bucyrus could do with corn what VanWert did with peonies; Holland, Mich., does with tulips and Circleville does with pumpkins and sponsored the first Crawford county corn show.

This week the sixth annual show is being staged in downtown Bucyrus, an event grown to a highlight for both rural and urban Crawford county each fall.

Thursday night, the opening night of the three day and night event, a corn queen received her crown in a ceremony which is becoming traditional with the corn show.

Surrounded by her court of girls selected by each of the county's ten consolidated schools, Miss Joan Brett received her crown from Miss Helen McGraw, Bucyrus high school senior and official hostess of the corn show.

Attired in formal wear, the girls took their places on the gaily decorated stand on Washington square following a short concert by the Bucyrus high school band under the direction of Robert Hofstetter.

In addition to receiving her crown, designed of copper and crested with a large V and set with red, white and blue jewels, Miss Brett was presented with a diamond ring by Lt. Col. Frank E. Cheshire, a gift from the O. L. Landes jewelry store.

Merchandise supplied by Bucyrus merchants was sold at auction for war bond purchases throughout the remainder of the evening.

The afternoon was devoted to judging of corn shocks and corn, entered in displays on the square. Winners will receive awards Saturday night. Trophies, cash and ribbons will be given to winning displays.

Bond sales at the corn show Thursday night boosted the Crawford county bond drive over the quarter mark and sales tonight and Saturday, with the mopping up by block workers in a house to house canvas Monday and Tuesday, is expected to push the drive over the $2,921,000 quota.

Real Commandos.

Nearly 300 French-Canadian troops were used for the Commando raid in Columbia's "First Comes Courage," current at the Madison theater. The film drama of the Norwegian underground stars Merle Oberon and Brian Aherne. The scenes were filmed on location at Beecher Bay, Vancouver Island, which bears a remarkable resemblance to the deep fjords of Norway. Adapted from the book "The Commandos" by Elliott Arnold, the picture was directed by Dorothy Arzner. "Submarine Alert" starring Richard Arlen and Wendy Barrie is the co-feature.

Together 12 Years.

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello celebrate their twelfth year together in the comedy "Rio Rita" now showing at the Ritz theater. The picture has a nice balance, with Kathryn Grayson and John Carroll providing romance and song. The comedians come into the story as stowaways in the turtleback of Carroll's roadster. They discover a basket of apples which turn out to be radios intended for a gang of spies. "All By Myself," the second feature, deals merrily with marital mix-ups, honeymoons and divorce threats.

Glamorous Role.

In "Redhead From Manhattan" showing at the Park theater, Lupe Velez has her most glamorous role to date. She has a dual role in the production, playing cousins who look alike and both are musical comedy stars. The supporting cast is headed by a newcomer, Michael Duane. Second feature on the bill is "Song of Texas," starring the popular Roy Rogers, singing cowboy.

Shows Part of Day.

"The Sky's the Limit" will have its final showing at the Ohio theater this afternoon giving way after the 4 p. m. run to the premiere of "This Is the Army." Fred Astaire and Joan Leslie are starred as dancing and romancing partners in this story of a Flying Tiger on leave in Manhattan.

Medical Corps Winning Fight Against Malaria

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—American Naval Merical officers, working side by side with front-line fighting forces in the South Pacific are slowly but surely eliminating malaria as one of the chief causes of casualties, according to Lt. Cmdr. Thomas P. Sharkey, (MC) of Dayton, Ohio, who has just returned from that area.

Sharkey, who is now at the Naval hospital recovering from a leg injury was one of the first medical officers to serve on a tropical island occupied by U. S. forces late last spring.

Malaria is carried only by a certain kind of mosquito—the anopheles—Sharkey pointed out, and, naturally, the first step in stamping out the disease was to destroy as many of the breeding places as possible. This is a terrific task in the South Pacific, where rains are heavy and the stagnant water and warm climate offer ideal breeding grounds.

Doctors are becoming engineers in their fight against malaria, Snarkey said. They are dynamiting the layers of soil from the top of coral in low places on the islands. With the coating removed, the porous coral offers a natural drain for mosquito-infested water. In the jungle streams are speeded up by the blasting of sand bars, dead logs and other obstacles that would give the water a chance to become stagnant.

LAST MULE DRIVER GONE

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal. (U.P.)—Edward Israel Stiles, age 85, the last survivor of the famous "20-mule-team" drivers of the Old West, died here recently. In 1882 Stiles met "Borax" Smith and W. T. Coleman, outstanding figures in Death Valley, became a driver for them and showed them how to get the borax out, until the auto truck came along.

RECOVERY HINT SCATTERED IN MARKET PRICES

But Many Leaders Continue To Slip Fractionally In Early Trading.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Scattered recoveries seeped into today's stock market but many leaders continued to slip fractionally in early dealings.

Improved at a quiet opening were Pepsi-Cola, Wilson and Company, Texas Company, U. S. Steel and International Telephone. Lower prices were posted for Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, Socony, American Sugar, Radio Corporation, American Airlines and Pennsylvania.

Boardrooms derived some comfort from the Federal Reserve compilation disclosing the nation's department store sales for the week ended Sept. 18 exceeded those of the like 1942 week by 17 per cent. This compared with a year-to-year increase of 10 per cent in the preceding week

REDS THREATEN TO CRACK MAIN NAZI DEFENSES

Sweep Triumphantly To Line on Dnieper, Shell Kiev and Smolensk.

of the Soviet advance, the correspondent said.

Discounting speculation that the autumn rains might slow down the Red army drive, Pravda said heavy rains had turned the black earth of the Ukraine into a quagmire. Roads were described as rivers, with caterpillar trucks bogging down at many places and artillerymen being compelled to push their guns by hand.

Pursuing Soviet troops overran another 200 towns and villages yesterday in advances of up to 10 miles around the slowly-closing offensive are before Kiev.

While one Russian column pounded to within less than 12 miles northeast of Kiev, another pushed down the railroad from Nezhin and captured Bobri, 25 miles east northeast of Kiev, killing 1,000 Germans and capturing 20 guns and other booty.

Enormous quantities of amunition, mines shells and arms were being abandoned by the Germans in their flight toward Kiev and the supposed safety of the west bank of the broad Dnieper river.

Some 200 miles to the north, the Soviets closed in on Smolensk, once Adolf Hitler's headquarters for the Russian front engulfing 190 localities northeast east and southeast of the city. The capture of Upalovo, to the northeast, brought the Russians within a little more than nine miles of Smolensk.

Northwest of the stronghold, the Russians stormed across the Kasplya river to pose a new threat from the rear after beating off more than 20 futile German counter-attacks.

The fast-breaking Russian advances also were threatening the industrial center of Dniepropetrovsk on the big bend of the Dnieper river, with one Soviet column seizing Harmovo, only 11 miles to the southeast

The Germans rushed fresh reserves into battle on the Dniepropetrovsk front in a vain attempt to hold intervening defense lines Overwhelming the defenses, the Russians occupied more than 30 communities, killed 800 Germans and wrecked eight German tanks

Charges Attorney Padded Highway Bill by $2,175

over to the Cuyahoga Abstract Title and Trust company, which presented its report to Doria with a bill for $2,500, Ferguson said. Doria signed the report and forwarded it to the state highway department with a bill for $5,780, according to Ferguson.

State examiners investigated the transaction and Doria's bill was reduced to $4 675, Ferguson reported

"It is my judgment that each of the foregoing vouchers is so excessive and unreasonable that if I were to issue my warrant payable to Doria an improper disbursement of public funds would necessarily result" Ferguson wrote Highway Director Hal G Sours today

Ferguson said Doria when questioned by state examiners admitted his work for the highway department was confined to submission of "minor memoranda," including his signature"

Ferguson said Sours approved both the original $5,780 voucher and the revised voucher for $4,675.

"It is my information that this profitable business was given to Doria by the highway department without competitive bidding or without receiving informal quotations from any abstract companies or other attorneys in Cuyahoga county," Ferguson wrote Sours

"Me, too, Judge. Pretty tough spot we were put in gettin' our supply of rubber cut off just when we needed it most. But, we'll be gettin' plenty of synthetic rubber real soon Say, is it true, Judge, that the beverage distilling industry has a part in producing it?"

"Yes, a very important part, Jim. That industry's facilities for producing grain alcohol make it possible to include 200,000 tons of rubber from grain in the government's 870,000-ton synthetic rubber program. Pretty important contribution to our war effort, isn't it Jim?"

"It certainly is, Judge. Wonder how many people really realize it?"

YANKS LAUNCH SUDDEN PUSH TOWARD NAPLES

Catch Nazis Off Balance But Battle Fury Mounts By Hour as Allies Gain.

affords an excellent view of the terrain to the north.

There were indications the Germans had withdrawn most of their troops from the Eighth army area. They have been thrown into battle against the Fifth army.

It was still too early to forecast outcome of the battle. But Gen. Clark's forces are fully prepared and more than evenly matched.

Headquarters officials disclosed that the Germans tried to frustrate Gen. Clark's preparations for the offensive on Sept. 21 by massing infantry north of Salerno in attempted disruptive counter-attack.

The Allied air force swooped down upon the enemy, dropping 500 pound bombs and strafing their lines, knocking out the thrust before it even began.

During the first hours of the American attacks, the Germans were hurled back three miles, with Oliveto and Citra falling into Allied hands.

Announcement of the start of the offensive, made from headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, indicated that Gen. Clark had elected to take the short route to Naples and smash directly in the northwest instead of attempting to encircle the port in cooperation with British Eighth army forces moving up on the east.

The overland drive was accompanied by shattering aerial assaults against the Nazi defenses and troop concentrations.

The first stages of the Fifth army attack got under way at the first light of dawn on Thursday.

The all-out assault was loosed after Allied forces stepped up their pressure on the Germans all along the line.

The Fifth army moved forward from heights commanding a view of Naples which lies near total ruin from fires and explosion set by the Nazis to destroy everything of value in the city.

The Allied troops, from positions on dominating heights above Naples, watching blazes destroy further portions of the ruined harbor city while awaiting the final order for an all-out assault to capture the port.

The communique reported that a force of motor torpedo boats had entered the Bay of Valona on the east side of the Straits of Otranto and had sunk a medium sized merchant ship and a smaller vessel.

On the west coast ships and men of the Allied navies continued to land troops and supplies on the beaches of Salerno to build up the forces driving northward on Naples.

Handley said he had recommended Oscar H. Hoppe, a veteran member of the employment service staff, for the job as interviewer to help the veterans find work in essential industries where they can continue to aid the war program if their health permits.

If Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, now chief of army service forces, should ask for retirement or assignment to a field command.

Somervell is reported to have been the choice of the ouster clique as a successor to Marshall as chief of staff.

High British officials in Washington, meanwhile, quote their army leaders as saying they left the Quebec conference believing Marshall would become world commander while remaining on the combined chiefs of staff committee which dominates all war strategy. The British insist that their army leaders want Marshall to remain on this committee.

The British also claim that Prime Minister Churchill shares this sentiment and point to his Boston speech delivered after the Quebec conference, in which the premier declared it would be "a most foolish and improvident act" to make any change in the personnel of the combined chiefs of staff.

It is known that Gen. Marshall shares Prime Minister Churchill's views about the importance of the combined committee. He also feels that he has contributed to its success. This would explain why his friends hope that he will remain upon it.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

CHAPTER XXX

The marshal held the sheet of paper before the eyes of the captured bandit. "This yore writing, Greer?"

"Yes," the redbearded man answered.

"How come you to write it? Did anyone give you any promise that this would help you get off?"

"Nary a promise."

"Because if anyone did—"

The outlaw cut his sentence short. "Don't try to ride me, Carson. I don't scare. And I don't give a damn what you think. You talk big now when they have got me, but when we were loose all you could do was fuss around and do nothing."

"Let's be reasonable," Broderick interrupted. "Greer is an outlaw, Whit. No denying that. He used to be one of the Hickory gang, but he broke away from them on account of his standing up for my daughter. Later he killed one of them, like Willie May says. Looks to me Greer's case is a special one."

"Not a special case as far as I'm concerned," Carson corrected. "That will have to be decided at Judge Parker's court."

"What we want is justice, not law," Broderick insisted. "At Fort Smith he'll just be another bad man from the Nation. Extenuating circumstances won't be considered. Greer is no such villian as Jake Hickory was."

"He was with the Hickorys at the Santa Fe hold-up when Pat Foley was killed. My job is to arrest lawbreakers. I'm not the judge and jury."

Broderick was in an unhappy dilemma. He knew that Carson could do nothing but take the captured outlaw to Arkansas for trial. Greer would probably be convicted and hanged.

The bandit shrugged his heavy shoulders impassively. He knew that if his case ever came to trial he would be found guilty and executed.

The cattleman walked with Bob to the other end of the room. "I'm sorry about this. We'll go to the trial at Fort Smith and do what we can for Greer. He's brought this on himself. I can't stand between him and Carson."

"No," Bob agreed.

"We're going to have all we can do making sure Hightower is saved. The evidence we have will be enough, but the time is short. I'll write telegrams and send them to Atoka by one of the boys, one to the judge who tried the case and another to the sheriff in charge of the execution. Byron Pierce I shall see personally. With this written confession of Greer he can't stand out, and he won't want to let the execution go on. In a few minutes I'll start. If I do any sleeping tonight it will be in the saddle."

"I'm going to see Judson. Now the Hickory outfit is wiped out maybe I can get him to tell the truth."

"Maybe. I wish you luck."

The ranchman walked out of the room. He had no time to lose. His daughter looked so desolate that Bob joined her."

"We'll put up a good fight for Greer at the trial," he promised. "Your father means to go through."

She shook her head. "That won't do. We've got to help him now."

"How?" Bob asked.

"See you in the orchard," she whispered.

He found her walking up and down under the apple tree.

"I can't let them take him to Fort Smith after what he did for me. Somehow I have to get him out of this," she said anxiously.

To Bob there flashed a picture of Sally Collins who had helped to escape another man accused of this same train robbery.

"I know how you feel," he nodded. "If there was anything we could do. But there's no use talking to Carson. He has to deliver Greer to the court."

"Father is having supper made for the posse and for their prisoner. Then they'll leave for Atoka. Couldn't something happen on the way?"

In the moonlight she was very lovely. The lowered lights from above gave her an ethereal look, an impression helped by the shadows under the fine eyes. She was so wistful and distressed that Bob wanted to take her in his arms and hold her close.

He shook his head. "No. Carson won't take any chances."

"With the Hickorys all dead but one he won't be expecting a rescue." Her voice, so eager and so pleading, tugged at his heart."

"No, we can't do anything like that," he said. "Carson is a game man. He'll fight. Somebody might get killed."

She made a despairing gesture. "I was afraid of that. But I thought maybe you could find a way. I do so want to help him."

He thought, furiously. "They'll put him in the jail at Atoka tonight. George Vickery will have him in charge 'till morning. Maybe—"

The sentence died out before it was well started. Whatever plans he made she had better not know.

"I don't want you to run any risk," she added, already alarmed and half sorry she had appealed to him.

"No," he replied absently. Already he began to see dimly how a rescue might be achieved.

"If any harm came to you or any of the boys I would be to blame. Forget I spoke to you about it, Bob."

"That might be best," he agreed.

He had given up so readily that she was disappointed. At least he could have held on until she had argued him out of doing anything dangerous. But no doubt since she had quarreled with him he was not interested in taking a chance to please her.

"I'm quite sure it would," she said. "Sorry I troubled you."

Without waiting for him she walked back to the house. Tears brimmed her eyes. She had thought he would understand that her coming to him had been a gesture of friendliness, an attempt to restore the warm feeling shaken by their differences about Hiram Sugg. But probably he did not want the old status renewed. He had saved her today because it was his duty as an employe of her father and not because she was a girl he liked.

Bob watched Willie May return to the ranch house, a strained grim smile on his face. He could not do anything right these days as far as she was concerned. He meant if possible to contrive the escape of Greer, but he could not make her a party to his lawless escapade. She must be in the clear and not an accessory.

He picked his men carefully, riders of the ranch he could depend upon to go through with his plan and not to talk about it afterward. Curt Simson was one. The others he decided upon were Red Yocum and a quiet lad known as Kansas. Bob had been in the saddle for more than twenty-four hours with only an hour or two of rest, but he roped a fresh horse and slipped away quietly to join the others at the head of the lane.

They reached Atoka long before the marshal's posse. A short cut across the prairie had saved between two and three miles. From the shadows of the brush across the road from the jail Kansas kept watch for the arrival of the other party. The rest of the rescue squad lay beneath a live oak a hundred yards back from the road. All three of them had been on duty for a long shift and were glad to relax.

Kansas woke them shortly after midnight. He reported that Carson had got in, turned his prisoner over to Vickery for the night, and had departed with his men to sleep in Medford's barn. Practically, Kansas had put them to bed, he claimed. At least he had seen them unsaddle their mounts and turn them into a pasture, heard them climb into the hay loft, and listened to the first of their snores.

Bob's plan was simple, but it might land them all in jail.

George Vickery, a Civil war veteran, was a cobbler. On the side he was a justice of the peace and jailer. The only times he had a prisoner was when some deputy marshal lodged a captive for the night in the barred room of his cabin.

A loud knocking on the door awakened him from a sleep into which he had just fallen. He stuck his head out of a window and inquired what they wanted with him.

"Do you have to bring all these birds to me in the middle of the night?" he rasped.

"You get two bucks for keeping him till morning, don't you?" the man below retorted.

"I'll be down," the former Confederate soldier snapped.

As soon as he opened the door Vickery felt that something was wrong. His visitors were dressed like cowboys. Their big hats were pulled down low over their foreheads and bandannas masked their faces to the eyes. He stepped back and started to slam the door, but his visitors crowded close. One of them pressed a .45 into his belly.

"Easy, George," the man back of the gun advised. "Everything will be nice if you behave."

"What do you want?"

"You have a friend of ours locked up." Bob pulled two dollars from his pocket and handed it to the jailer. "Here is yore fee for keeping him. We'll take him with us, and you'll save the cost of his breakfast."

Vickery sputtered indignantly. "I don't want yore money. You got no right to take him."

"Give the money to the church. About taking him, we'll leave that to Rush Greer. If he doesn't want to go he can stay."

"Who are you, anyhow?"

"Don't ask questions, George. This is a jail break. Get the keys, and we'll drop in on Greer."

The old soldier grumbled but obeyed.

Greer lay on a bed, handcuffed to the wooden side piece. At first he thought it was a lynching party.

"Come for me, I reckon," he said coolly.

"Yes, Rush. We're friends."

The outlaw asked no more questions. They might or might not be what they claimed. He would find out about that very soon.

"If I had a gun on me—" the jailer began.

"You would get into trouble," Bob said, helping him with his uncompleted sentence. "Don't get excited, George. We're going to put you to bed nice in Greer's place. Happy dreams."

They left him handcuffed as the outlaw had been.

A horse for Greer had been brought along by the J A B men. Five minutes later they drew up on a hill top half a mile from town.

"We'll say good-bye here," Bob told the bandit. "Head south but keep well to the east."

"Do I get a gun?" asked Greer.

"No. I'll give you money if you need any."

"I'll need it. They took away every nickle I had."

Among them the cowboys had thirteen dollars. They turned it over to the fugitive.

"Much obliged, boys. I know two of you, though Vickery didn't. Of course I'll keep mum. I know, too, why you're doing this. There was no obligation on you to help me. What I did last night in camp any white man would have done."

"I'll come clean, Greer. No names mentioned, but we got you outa this jam because somebody was unhappy about your getting caught." Bob concluded on a note of light sarcasm. "Now if you'll hit the trail we'll all call this the end of our friendship."

The hardy outlaw rode down into the valley and out of their lives. Rumors about him drifted to them now and again. Under another name he was working on a ranch in Dimmit county, Texas. Several years later a rider who had left the J A B met and recognized him in Tucson, Arizona, where he had a small spread of him own. He had a young wife and two children.

There was to be no rest for Bob that night. Though he was desperately weary, he had to see Judson and let him know the Hickory gang was destroyed and a confession exonerating Hightower signed by Rush Greer. By the time he had reached Four Corners and dragged the storekeeper from a restless troubled sleep it was past three o'clock.

He told his story swiftly and sharply. There was no time to waste if they were to get to Stringtown to flag the early morning train. Judson was half dressed, and in the cold morning air he shivered.

"I've been sick ever since the shooting in my store," he complained to Lee. "Where I come from desperadoes don't terrorize honest folks. What could I have done? Easy for fellows like you to criticise me, but if I had testified the Hickorys began the firing they would have killed me sure as you're a foot high."

Bob was sorry for the man. He had been dragged into a situation too perilous for him to handle. Judson did not belong in a wild frontier country like this. He was too timid, too filled with fears. Maybe a man was born a craven or game and had to play the hand that was dealt him.

"A man has to have fighting tallow in this neck of the woods," Bob told him. "Soon as you're outa this you better drift back to Indiana or whatever it is you come from. But that will wait. Question right now is, are you going to come clean now the Hickory gang is busted? If so, we've got to catch up a horse for you and get going prontito."

"They would claim I had given perjured testimony and send me to the penitentiary," Judson pleaded.

Lee could not keep a touch of scorn out of his voice. "No, they would know the Hickorys had you buffaloed and let you go. My God, you're not going to sit here and let an innocent man die without making a move, are you?"

JOHN SCHRANK is dead. In 1912 he shot Theodore Roosevelt, who was then conducting his Bull Moose campaign for a third term. Roosevelt was not dangerously hurt, but had to stay off the stump for some time. Schrank was sent to the Wisconsin State Hospital for the Criminally Insane, where he has just died.

Schrank was led to his deed by the violence of the campaign. While there could easily be widely different opinions about Theodore Roosevelt and his third-term aspirations, much that was said and written in 1912 went beyond all decency. Almost any feeble-witted person might have formed the impression that T. R.'s assassination would be a patriotic service. Schrank certainly so interpreted what he heard and read, and acted on it.

Who is elected president is of serious moment, and strong feeling is legitimate. Many campaigns, however, have been disfigured by speeches and writings that might be silly if they were not so shocking. They may be direct incentives to murder. Should that ever happen in a campaign, its provokers, even if they escaped legal punishment, would be driven by public indignation into permanent hiding.

Partisan feeling is best kept under reasonable control. That was too close a call in 1912.

Chickens In Curves

THAT a new form of domestic architecture for chickens has arisen in the land becomes apparent to anyone who has had occasion to travel much through the great rural sections of the midwest in the last year or two. Looking out from the car or train window, many structures are seen in the form of half-cylinders. Top and sides seem to be rolled in one sheet of thin metal or plywood. What are they for? The great flocks of white or red-brown chickens around them supply the answer.

A single hen and her brood used to live in a small, triangular, boxlike affair. The front was barred with lath, the rest was solid. Then larger flocks inhabited houses of the lean-to order, with the roof slanting in one direction only. There was some light, but not a great deal. Artificial light? Of course not.

Now the chickens live in streamlined abodes with large windows fore and aft, and the walls and roof all in one unbroken curve. The new form is spreading, too, from hens to flivvers. In some places these structures give home space to families. The stove pipe differentiates them.

No doubt the curved surface serves other ends than mass production and economy. It gives no purchase to the wind, for instance. But what are we coming to?

Gold as An International Standard

CONFERENCES by leading nations regarding future international currencies were sure to come up sooner or later. Recent discussions by the United States and Great Britain particularly are looking to that end. The fact that such a stage has been reached is an omen of ultimate peace and normal finance.

It is significant that these two leading powers assume the dominance of gold as an international standard hereafter, very much as it was before war upset so many things. Also that the United States, by virtue of its economic power and the gold stored in the United States treasury, is prepared to dominate the world money situation. Apparently about $20,000,000,000 of the $25,000,000,000 of gold bullion piled up before the United States entered the war, is still there.

Britain has the next-largest hoard. It is much less than Uncle Sam's, but presumably enough for the two treasuries and war partners to dominate world finance while the need exists—and probably thereafter.

Prepaid Repairs

ONE of the good ideas brought forth by the building industry is that of the prepaid repairs. So many people are planning to cash in their bonds the minute the war is over to make improvements on their homes that a financing problem is going to arise right there, for the government and other institutions. The best way to do with the bonds is to put them in the safe deposit box and forget them till they are due. That helps the country most and also is of most value to the individual saver. But a great many people are buying bonds and still have a little loose money in the jeans. They cannot buy the new stoves and sinks their wives want, or build on new bedrooms or finish basement or attic or put in a new furnace. But they could pay ahead for these desirable additions to living.

Some banks and savings and loan companies are already prepared to take care of these prepayments, either as additions to mortgage payments, or as a maintenance thrift fund, on the order of the Christmas club. Later, when the improvements are available, the maintenance fund can be drawn on for them.

This sounds like a pretty sound idea. It prepares for happier days for homes, and at the same time lets the bonds ride out their appointed years.

Sea-Going Jeeps

THERE'S fascination in those "amphibious jeeps." And what a name, and what an opportunity for enterprising kids at home, where they have any kind of access to the water and any landing place that may serve as a "beachhead."

Sure enough, if there can be jeeps on land there can be similar contraptions in the water, and there should be enough enterprise in youngsters to combine the two ideas practically, at almost any waterfront or inland stream. And if boys are still what they used to be, they may soon be rigging up the necessary water craft and power plant, and preparing for many an amphibious landing on shores that never expected it. Anything can happen in these days.

There's a way to tell whether a radio character is an actor or a real hero. According to Robert Quillen: "If he sounds heroic he's an actor."

"VALLEY OF THE SHADOW"

MacArthur Statement on Fighting Strategy Leaves Question Mark

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

ONE of the many things the world likes about General Douglas MacArthur is that this great soldier speaks his mind as befits a man of action, but his unusual statement in Australia that however subordinate may be his role in the war, he hopes to play it manfully, leaves one with feelings of deep puzzlement as to why he thought it necessary to issue it.

The general's declaration is wholly cryptic to the American public, and the usual news sources in Washington profess to be equally at a loss. There's no indication of what inspired it beyond the fact that obviously something is troubling him.

Is it that the supreme commander of army, naval and air forces of the Allied nations in the southwest Pacific (to give him his full, rather terrifying title) feels that he has been in some way belittled? If that is what he thinks, he's wrong, for his position in the esteem of the American people is as high as the skies. He is one of our great national heroes and his place in our hall of fame is secure.

All sorts of guesses are being made as to exactly what is in MacArthur's mind. But nobody has got closer to it than that apparently he feels he is being circumscribed somehow in carrying out his strategic conception for the Pacific theater. This, as he says, "contemplates massive strokes against only main strategic objectives," which would "obviate the need for storming the mass of islands now in the enemy's possession." One of his most cherished objectives, of course, is recapture of the Philippines.

Many observers think perhaps MacArthur is talking about the coming Burma drive, and the appointment of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten as Allied commander in southeast Asia. Well, it's hard to see how Mountbatten's appointment could subordinate MacArthur or detract from the latter's command. It might easily be, however, that the staging of the Burma show, which will call for the massing of vast striking-power in the Indian theater might temporarily deprive the general of resources which he would like for his own offensive.

Be all that as may, the Allied high command says the Burma show is to go forward. That's in accordance with the general strategy laid out long ago. As things now stand, one of the first things which must be done in the grand offensive against Japan is to drive the mikado's little men out of Burma and reopen the famous Burma road—China's lifeline to the outside world.

It's one of the miracles of the war that the severance of this communication hasn't already forced the Chinese to capitulate, despite their heroic fortitude. They've in a manner of speaking been fighting with fare fists and tight belts. If the Chinese should be knocked out it would present the Allies with bleak prospects.

We are looking to China to supply the fighting men to oust the Japs from the continent, and air bases from which we can operate against the invaders and against Japan itself. We must feed and arm the Chinese. We need Burma as a base; we need its resources, especially the oil which is so badly wanted for Chinese operations. Vast quantities of supplies must go up the Irrawaddy river from Rangoon on the road to Mandalay, and finally be loaded on trucks which will crawl over that winding highway that leads through the mountains to China.

Eviction of the Japanese from their positions in the Burmese jungle represents a vast operation. It calls for an amphibious expedition which will tax Allied resources if it's undertaken before the end of the European war, as we are led to believe is the intention unless Hitler collapses in the near future. Perhaps MacArthur's own operations might be delayed by this, though one would hope that he might see both offensives going at once, thus placing the Nipponese in a vise.

It's about 5,000 miles from the Indian theater to New Guinea where General MacArthur has been doing such grand work, and that's a long, long trail for any one headquarters to cover.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, Sept. 24, 1923.

President Coolidge said: "Civilization is coming to rely more and more upon moral force, rather than armies and navies, for the settlement of world problems."

Harry T. Flasher became assistant division engineer in state highway department.

Centenary class of Central Methodist church gave farewell surprise party for Rev. and Mrs. C. B. Hess.

Mrs. James Corcoran, 63, died at her home, 153 North Main street.

Friends received announcement of marriage of Mrs. Bertha Shunk, formerly of Mansfield, to Edward F. Warren, in Pasadena, Calif.

Local chapter of Phi Delta Kappa fraternity was organized, with Carl Wampler as first president.

Jerome Freundlich went to Chicago to attend national clothiers' convention.

Mr and Mrs. Norman Burneson returned from two weeks canoe trip down Walhonding river

TODAY IN HISTORY

John Marshall, chief justice of the United States longer than any other man (35 years), was born Sept. 24, 1755.

It Says Here:

—By D. K. W.

MRS. ROOSEVELT arrived back in San Francisco yesterday, but that's not saying she's still there. Lloyd's of London probably wouldn't take a bet on where she'll be from one day to the next.

* * *

This trip was 23,145 miles according to press dispatches. They don't say who kept track of the miles. But the record probably goes unchallenged, anyhow. Only Willkie has come close and he took time out to write a book. He'll never catch up now.

* * *

Not so long ago Herbert Hoover had to give up his seat on a plane to an army officer and get home the best way he could. Mrs. FDR was just real lucky that no army man needed her place while she was down there close to the southwest Pacific war zone.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

On the Third Call.

How do you go to sleep? I take
A book to bed and read
Until it falls out of my hand
And characters recede

To nothing. Then I rouse myself
And read determinedly
Until the books falls again and eyes
Refuse to humor me.

But once more I persevere;
I rescue book and try
The chapter to conclude; third time
I cannot sleep deny.

Dave Boone Says:

IN THE Nazi threat to the Roman Catholic church and those brutal warnings of punishment unless it takes the side of Germany you see the type of men who would not hesitate at a repetition of the crucifixion. The Nazi routine stops at nothing. It tramples the most sacred things.

* * *

You would think that Germany with its long history of doing the wrong thing, of always taking some one step that outraged the nations and cost it the last vestige of support anywhere, would know better than to attack the Vatican and ask every parish priest to go back on his God. But it never learns.

Every real Roman Catholic in the world, millions upon millions, are outraged, aroused, and fighting mad over this latest Berlin decree. And countless men on the fighting fronts will now battle with a hate they didn't know before.

* * *

And if Hitler could find an excuse and a way he would police, berate and threaten the Protestant church just as brutally. Protestants and Jews, join the Roman Catholics in the fierce resentment of the Berlin broadcast! Hitler is one of the few men in the world who still thinks he can scare the church. That gives you an idea how crazy he is.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Mountbatten Gets King Button And Hopes It Brings Burma Luck

WASHINGTON — Soon after Lord Louis Mountbatten, cousin of the king of England, was appointed commander on the Burma front, he sent word to Admiral "Ernie" King, commander of the U. S. fleet, that he would like to come to Washington to see him.

Tough sea-dog King sent word he would be glad to see him. Alighting from his plane, Mountbatten went straight to King's office, and after a wait, was ushered into the presence of the U. S. commander of the fleet.

"Admiral," said Lord Mountbatten with his usual gracious charm, "there is one great favor you can do for me."

Admiral King, according to friends, looked quizzical as if saying to himself, "I thought so." But Mountbatten, unabashed, continued:

"Yes, Admiral, I should like a button off your tunic. I have one from General Marshall and I want one from you. I know it will bring me good luck."

Admiral King relaxed. Lord Mountbatten got the button.

Night-Owl Churchill.

JUST two days after Prime Minister Churchill left Washington. President Roosevelt grappled with the tough problem of taxes in a manner which surprised his callers.

He received Senator George of Georgia, Representative Doughton of North Carolina, Economic Stabilizer Judge Vinson and Assistant President Jimmy Byrnes in a session to draft a new tax program to be proposed as soon as the current bond drive is out of the way.

When they came in they handed the president a detailed estimate of a tax plan. It was rather complicated. He looked it over rapidly, grasped the fundamentals immediately. Most men would have required very careful study to have taken in the new proposed tax picture, but the president got it in about two minutes, meanwhile keeping up a running fire of cheerful chatter.

He looked much refreshed, explained to his callers that he was feeling better since the departure of the prime minister.

"Now I can get some sleep," the president laughed.

Every night about the time he was ready for bed, FDR explained, the British prime minister was just getting going. Then, after a few hours sleep, Churchill was up in the morning at about 10 or 11 and would nail the president at his bedroom door just as he was about to go over to the executive offices.

Usually the president transacts business in his bedroom or the Lincoln study in the morning, getting to the executive offices at about 10:30 for his round of appointments.

But with the prime minister nailing him at his door, the president explained good-naturedly, all his appointments for the day got snarled up. Then in the afternoon, Mr. Churchill took a good long nap, and was fresh and bright for another session at night.

Capital Chaff.

A SENATE military affairs sub-committee contends that there are critical war shipping delays, with cargo ships bound for England, Italy and the South Pacific held up because of improper loading . . . Administration friends have sounded out forthright Colorado publisher Walter Walker of Grand Junction about running for U. S. senator against Republican Senator Milliken next year, but he couldn't be persuaded . . . Jim Barnes, popular White House secretary, will not run again for his old Democratic seat in congress from Illinois. When a friend pointed out that he only lost by a couple of hundred votes last time and that the president could pull him through in 1944, Jim replied: "Nobody could pull us through in southern Illinois." . . . Recommended reading for the state department: "What To Do With Italy," the new book by Gaetano Salvemini. . . . Vice President Wallace says that "the social revolution is on the way and the Devil and all his angels can't stop it." American Legion Commander Roane Waring replies: "The Devil and all his angels might not be able to stop it, but by the Eternal God, the American Legion will."

Tray-Pushing Senators.

TO MEET the manpower shortage, senators are pushing their own trays in the senate office building restaurant. During the recess of congress, the room was converted to a cafeteria, with a lot of fancy new equipment.

One of the first tray-pushers was Senator McNary of Oregon, and close at his heels was Mrs. Caraway of Arkansas, followed by Senators Aiken of Vermont, and Maybank of South Carolina.

They found they could get a cup of coffee for five cents, three doughnuts for a dime, hot cereal and milk for 15 cents, and buttered toast for seven cents.

But they found no orange juice. Why?—the OPA. Restaurant manager D. W. Darling hastenend to explain that he couldn't sell orange juice under the OPA ceiling prices without losing money. The ceiling was set on the basis of April prices, when the restaurant was selling orange juice at 10 cents (small glass) and 15 cents (large).

Meanwhile, oranges have gone up from $4.25 a crate to $7.50.

"I just can't do it," says Darling. So the tray-pushing senators go without their orange juice.

Aunt Mary May Be 70 But Even With a Strenuous Life Behind Her She Can Still Make Own Way.

INDIANAPOLIS—My Aunt Mary was born 30 years too soon. Jim Williams should draw one of his "Out Our Way" cartoons about her.

If she were 40, instead of 70, I am sure she would be in congress now. She always did want to be in politics, but she was born to the farm instead. She knows all about politics and national affairs, and does plenty of first-rate original thinking, too. Yet she never went beyond the eighth grade in school.

My Aunt Mary was past 40 when she married. I remember when Uncle George first started going with her. She lived at our house then, and he would come to take her riding before breakfast. He drove a fractious sorrel mare, hitched to a two-wheeled racing sulky, with just a little seat on it.

He would stop out in the road and yell till we were all awake, then Aunt Mary would go out and get in with him. She was ashamed to ride up and down the road in a racing sulky on a tiny little seat with a man before breakfast, but she liked Uncle George, so she went.

And I remember the night they were married. There were a lot of people at our house that night. I was a little shaver, but I had sense enough to know that as soon as the knot was tied the kissing would start. So I hid behind the couch.

Sure enough, as soon as the ceremony was over, Aunt Mary, crying as though she had just buried Uncle George instead of married him, wanted to kiss everybody in the place, especially me. And I couldn't be found. The search finally got so frantic I decided to come out and get kissed and have it over with. Which I did.

Uncle George lived on a farm, but he wasn't a farmer; he was a dreamer. He would fuss all day around his garden and his flowers, and play his beautiful big black square piano, and order whole freight car loads of lime fertilizer he couldn't pay for, and talk by the hour about his prize sweet corn, and spend whole half-days studying the flower and seed catalogs he had sent away for.

My Uncle George was a great man, and he worked like a Trojan, but he never got anything done, and Aunt Mary had to make the living.

And she did a nice job of it too. She raised hundreds of chickens, and she raised her own hogs and cows, and through 20 years she kept the treasury from going flat.

She worked from 4 in the morning till 9 at night.

She bought an automobile as early as 1915 and learned to drive it when she was 50 years old. Uncle George never would drive the damn thing, so she had to haul him around too.

Then one day, some 10 years ago, my Uncle George died. Aunt Mary was 60. She had been born on a farm, raised on a farm; had never been off the farm. But she was alert, she had more energy than a buzz saw, and she was tall and straight despite a lifetime of killing work.

And so, at 60, she went to the city, all alone, to make her way in the world. She worked at all kinds of jobs. She worked as supervisor in a girls' reform school. She worked in a restaurant. She took care of a sick woman. She worked as a housekeeper.

And today at 70 she is still working. Not only making her own way, as we say of boys just out of college, but helping keep a lot of other people, just as she always has.

In the city, my Aunt Mary has had time and opportunity to keep up with what's going on in the world even better than she did before. She knows all about the New Deal, and is in favor of it.

Most farm people and churchmen are fundamentalists. But my Aunt Mary would need take only a couple of jumps to be a full-fledged Socialist. She has pretty advanced ideas, and if she were 40 instead of 70 I'll bet she'd make the capitalists holler.

She still has all her old energy. When she writes letters her mind runs so far ahead of her pen that she leaves out half the words.

But her main interest in life still lies in the little community where she lived for 60 years. About twice a year she goes back for a few days. People say to her what a shame she has to go back so soon and she says, philosophically, but spirited-like too, "Yes, I'd sure love to stay, but I've got my own way to make, you know."

A Farmer's Diary — By CALVIN A. BYERS

Dose of Quinine

MOST readers of this column have never seen a cinchona orchard. But there is significance, for all of us, in the new bud-grafted trees that have been recently set out upon the steep, moist hillsides of Guatemala and other southern countries, in this hemisphere.

Cinchonas—had you forgotten?—produce quinine. Quinine is what it takes to fight malaria. Malaria is of that group of infectious fevers that is caused when red blood cells are destroyed by parasites—carried by mosquitos and especially dangerous to dwellers of the temperate zones, new to the tropics. With millions of American boys in the tropics now, it looks as if we would have need of much quinine for years after the war.

After the Spanish-American war, epidemics of malaria occurred as far north as Duluth, Syracuse and Cleveland. There were only thousands—not millions—of soldiers, in that war.)

Cinchona trees are native to South America. There, on the slopes of the Andes, where centuries of leaf fall had made deep humus, and where the clouds rising from the lowlands kept the leaves perpetually moist, originated the best quinine producing trees.

From there, in 1852, an English scientist carried plantings to Java—where rainfall is 210 inches—and established cultivated orchards. Cultivated crops were better. The market for wild quinine dwindled. The time went by when a South American Indian could hack wild bark, dry it in the sun, and haul it in bales to the nearest seaport for a profitable sale. By 1920, Java and its Dutch colonial neighbor, Sumatra produced 97 per cent of the world's supply of quinine. The trade was ruled by a powerful cartel.

Luckily, during 1941, before the Dutch East Indies fell to the Japs, the United States government secured large stocks of cinchona. Our armed forces hold nearly all the refined quinine in the world—outside the Axis.

Now, Pan-American countries are keenly interested in developing a lasting and profitable and much needed quinine trade. Expert foresters, from United States, and from other neighboring countries, are scouting the tropical forests for new and more valuable strains of cinchona. Cinchona orchards are being planted—especially in Guatemala, where on the slope of a volcano, the government of that country maintains the world's best cinchona research farm.

After all, from the corn belt farms which you and I own, to the cinchona farms of Guatemala, is only a short airplane trip. When farmers can clasp hands, around the world, it ought to make living better. Farming is basic.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Fall Check-Up of Plum Trees In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released By Central Press)

FALL AND winter are the seasons when plum trees in the Victory garden or on the home grounds should be given a careful check-up. Be on the lookout for "black knot," a destructive disease among plumb trees. The black swellings which characterize this disease can be easily seen once the foliage has dropped.

Elongated black knots on the smaller limbs of a plum tree, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, are usually the first indication of the disease. These knots are usually from ½ inch to 6 or 8 inches in length, and from ¼ to 1½ inches in diameter.

Frequently a pink mold is observed covering the knots during summer or fall. This is not a stage in the life of the black knot organism but is the fungus which frequently follows the scab of apples.

If black knot is found to be present in a tree, promptness in cutting out and burning the knots in the autumn or early winter is the most effective way to control or eradicate the disease.

Be on the watch also for brown rot which on plums as well as peaches attacks the fruit and leaves it mummified as shown in the Garden-Graph. Many gardeners are not aware, however, that brown rot causes the twigs to become blighted in a manner similar to fire blight of pear, the withered leaves clinging to the twig as illustrated.

Orchard sanitation cannot be overemphasized as a control measure for brown rot, in addition to carefully planned spray schedule. Mummified fruit should be removed from the trees when pruning.

War Demands More Control In the Home

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

These times demand good citizenship. It is unthinkable that so many children grow up to be destructive of property in the neighborhood, and inconsiderate of the rights of others and disregardful of constituted authority, while our choicest young men are offering their lives in defense of our country and our liberties, rights, and possessions. Indeed, some of the young destroyers in our midst have big brothers or even fathers among our country's brave defenders.

Wartime has rapidly increased the number of mothers working away from home and, therefore, the number of children left in the care of others or with practically no care at all. The child well controlled in an atmosphere of love and understanding by the mother is to that degree the better fitted to be safe physically and morally while she is absent.

Task Harder For Mothers.

Wartime takes many fathers away from home, leaving sole responsibility with the mother for the children. How much harder her task and poorer her successes under such conditions if her child has not been taught obedience.

As I have often said in this column, we lay the best foundations for good citizenship by training the child about as soon as he begins to toddle in the unambiguous meaning of "No" in order to establish in him due respect for the rights of others and regard for constituted authority.

This teaching is most effectively done, I believe, by means of the good old fashioned spanking applied consistently by both parents. The should work according to a plan they have agreed upon, in a family atmosphere of understanding and love. Let me here emphasize this: Limit spanking to just a few situations for keeping the child from doing what you forbid, and not in order to get him to do what you want him to do.

Other Punishments.

As soon as the child will stay where he is told, corporal punishment may be abandoned (at the age of three or four) and for it effective punishment can be substituted by assigning the child to sit for a definite period doing nothing where he can be seen. Later there can be other effective substitutes. Having learned the alphabet of obedience at three or four he has a good preparation for obedience at ten or fifteen.

If you wish to read further for disciplining the young child, write me in care of this paper and ask for my bulletin, "Teaching Tot Meaning of No," enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Sept. 25.

The sidereal operations on this day, while indicative of lively and exciting conditions, may not be interpreted as entirely fortunate. There are signs of peculiar and intriguing situations, calling for much discretion and conservatism, if dangerous and unprofitable denouements are to be averted. The best prospects are noted through dealing with finesse, tact or sagacity with either persons or institutions, with secrecy. Rely on intuition, inspiration or inner vision for success.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may gain success and personal gratification by adhering to a conservative and prudent course in the face of peculiar, mysterious or unprecedented predicaments. Intrigues and glamorous circumstances may lure to irregular ventures. Intuition, idealism and mystical urges may be relied on if based on high spiritual purpose. Be cautious in travel, writings or other doubtful communications.

A child born on this day may have some unique talents or traits of character, and having an attractive personality, it may be subject to misconstruction or fraud.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"You see," my father went on, "I dare not trust Ronald with details until the last minute. He is too desperate with terror for Marion. When the time for the actual rescue comes, he will be keyed up for action, and will realize what a wrong move on his part would mean.

"Also, if he never is left alone, he can be of use in watching with the guards in the apartment we are renting opposite the restaurant from which Marion sent the message to us by the waiter, Crump. But before my plan is perfected, I want to keep him busy. Ah, I fancy that is his knock now."

Welcomes Ronald.

He moved to the door, opened it the length of the night chain, and then I heard his voice in cordial welcome.

"Ah, Ronald, come in," he said. "You have finished the letter, I gather."

He ushered the boy inside and placed a chair for him. But Ronald did not sit down until my father had seated himself.

"Yes, I have finished it," he said, extending to my father the sheet of note paper he held in his hand, and an addressed envelope. "But I thought I ought to have your approval first before I sealed the envelope."

"I shall be glad to look at it," my father replied, settling himself in his chair, adjusting his eyeglasses, and reading the letter carefully. Then he passed it over to me.

"I'd like your opinion," he said. "I'm not very strong on youthful feminine psychology, but it seems all right to me."

I took the letter and read with attention what the distracted boy had written to his sister.

"Carolyn Darling Brat," the brief note began, and then, in awkward, jerky sentences, he outlined the things my father wished the girl to know. At the close, he went back to the endearing half mirthful phrases with which I guessed he always embellished his letters to the sister he idolized, but whose possible treachery he was subconsciously fearing.

"I'll be mighty glad to see you, precious brat, and I'll have a hickory stick ready for you if you try any of your old tricks on me. Always, Your big bad brother, Ron."

I think my eyes were a bit misty as I handed the note, with its aura of tragedy, back to my father.

"I think it's perfectly all right," I told him.

"Then," my father said, as he extended the sheet of note paper to Ronald, "put it in the envelope and get it mailed right away."

"You want me to take it to the main postoffice, I imagine," Ronald said, as he folded the sheet of paper, inserted it in the envelope, and sealed it.

"Yes, and be sure to put a special delivery on it," my father said, and Ronald rose and with casual good-byes to us, started for the door. My father followed him, and before he opened it, gave him, an apparently unpremediated additional errand.

"When you have mailed the letter," he said, "would you mind going down to the Underwood house and keeping Noel company until I telephone you to come back here? You see, I promised Marion's mother that the house never would be left alone, so that if Marion should get an opportunity to send a message there, somebody who knows her would be on the job. Of course, Noel knows her, but—"

"But he isn't one of her family," Ronald broke in impetuously. "Of course I'll go over there,—and—do you need me for anything special here?"

"No, why?" my father asked.

"Because I'd like to stay over there, if I might, as long as you do not need me somewhere else," Ronald replied. "It makes me seem nearer Marion somehow."

Ronald Departs.

"No reason in the world why you shouldn't stay there," my father answered, and then Ronald was gone, and I burst out in admiring comment.

"And he never guessed that you had planned it all out!" I said.

"It didn't take much planning," my father said deprecatingly. "But it's all to the good that he won't sit in on our councils. Now if Harry only will arrive! We haven't much time."

"Here he is now!" I exclaimed excitedly as the knocker sounded, and in another two seconds the splendidly built figure of Harry Underwood came into the room, his brilliant black eyes, betraying excitement.

"Have you had any news of Marion?" he asked.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE PURPOSE OF TABLES

Regardless of how you value a hand or what tables of high-card tricks you use, it is up to you to be the master of your destiny and make your own decisions. You are not the servant of your honor card count. It does not give orders to you, to open the bidding with one hand or pass with another. It is supposed to be your servant, just as is a tool in the carpenter's kit, waiting there to be used when you wish to use it. On many occasions, you should violate the supposed requirements of your honor table, passing a hand with a bit more than minimum prescribed amounts or bidding with a hand which lacks them.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass |
| 3 ♠ | Pass | 4 ♠ | |

That is not the bidding which was actually done on this deal. It was merely "Pass, pass, pass, pass," and so a game for North-South was thrown into the waste basket.

When the players exposed their hands after the pass-out, South in an agonized tone wanted to know why North had not opened with a spade bid.

"Simply because I did not have two and a half honor tricks," he answered, "and because I do not like psychics or shaded bids."

He went on to explain that some years ago he used to consider a queen of one siut and a jack of another, if each had a couple of guards, as half a trick, but that in recent years he had not done this. He had not taken account of the fact that he had a five-card length in the most desirable suit of all, spades, the only suit which always compels opponents to bid at a higher level in order to overcall it with their own suit.

If that hand, with its five spades headed by the Q, were submitted to the leading 50 players of the nation—whoever they may be—at least 48 of them, and probably 50, would make an opening bid of a spade on it. Of course, as it turns out, game depends on the location of the heart K, but that finesse would work as the cards lie, and only three tricks would be lost, one in clubs and two in trumps.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West leads the diamond K against South's 4-Hearts on this deal, what card should East put on the trick, and why?

WILLKIE FACES DECISION SOON ON PRIMARIES

Would Face Hot Contest In Illinois Voting on Feb. 10.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Wendell L. Willkie, who looks like the man to beat in the race for 1944 Republican presidential nomination, is confronted today with the job of deciding whether to enter some hot presidential primary elections.

New Hampshire leads off on March 14 followed by New York and Wisconsin on April 4; Illonois and Nebraska, April 11; Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, April 25. Alabama, California, Florida, Maryland, New Jersey, Ohio Oregon, South Dakota and West Virginia hold primaries in May. Georgia starte committees determinew hen and wether a primary shall be held and Arkansas holds a primary at least two months before the party National convention.

But Willkie has only four and one half months—until Feb. 10—to decide whether to enter the Illinois primary wheree candidats must file their intentions 60 days before the voting. He has only a few days beyond Feb. 10 to recide on New Hampshire. He can hold off in New York until three weeks before the choice of convention delegates in that state.

But since his decision on the Illinois race must come first, it will be a tip off on his primary strategy in general. The Illinois primary offers a bitter fight in which Col. Robert R. McCormick, of the Chicago Tribune, probably will be chairman of the anti-Willkie board of strategy.

Although he led the Republican forces that were licked for a third time by President Roosevelt in 1940, Willkie does not appar to be first choice among the voters for the 1944 Republican nomination. Polls show that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, is No. 1. But Dewey has said he would not seek nomination to any office during his term as governor of New York. He did not say he would not seek election to some other office, but merely that he would not seek nomination for any other office.

It appears from here that Willkie would improve his chances considerably if he took the pre-convention risk of making the tough primary fights. If he loses them he is licked, but if he wins them he will be hard to stop.

Organize Plans For Tuberculosis Levy Campaign

Representatives of Mansfield schools, churches, and civic organizations took steps last night to organize a campaign to boost the passage of the half mill tuberculosis levy coming before the voters in November.

A committee appointed by Dr. John S. Hattery, chairman of the tuberculosis advisory committee, and including Mrs. Louise Reese, Jane Williams, and Margaret Adams will meet tomorrow to select a campaign committee.

In his survey of the work done at the county tuberculosis sanatorium, Dr. Oren A. Beatty, superintendent, noted that the sixth highest cause of death in the county is tuberculosis with 26 deaths from the disease last year.

He said that over a period of 20 months the county had had 22 war casualties as compared to 40 deaths from tuberculosis during the same period.

STORKS FED UP WITH GERMANS

Refuse to Retur nto Nesting Places In Naziland.

BOSTON —(AP)— The stork, a bird not hitherto noted for its discrimination, has finally become fed up with the Nazis.

According to Arthur J. Orner, Congregational educational missionary under the American Board of Foreign Missions in Mt. Silinda, Rhodesia, South Africa, these legendary baby taxis have staged a strike and refused to return to their usual nesting places in Germany.

Orner explained that they usually migrate to South Africa for the winter, returning home for the nesting season. This year, he said, they stayed in South Africa.

RETAILERS HEAR OF OPA RULING

Mansfield mercants who stock women and children's clothes met last night at the ration board with H. H. Klein of the Cleveland district Office of Price Administration.

Klein explained to the merchants the workings of OPA order 330 which applies to the sale of wearing apparel for women and children.

Ration board officials today said merchants unable to attend the meeting could secure an explanation of the OPA ruling by calling the board.

ORDER CHICKEN PLEBISCITE

INGLEWOOD, Cal. —(U.P.)— A plebiscite has been ordered on behalf of rabbits and chickens. It will decide whether they are to be allowed within the city limits. To make sure that everyone would vote, the plebiscite votes were sent out with each water bill to the citizenry.

BERLIN BETRAYS WORRY OVER AIR RAIDS, LOSSES AT FRONT

(By United Press)

Berlin propaganda today betrayed growing Nazi concern over the effect on the German people of losses on the fighting fronts and damaging Allied air raids at home.

A series of Berlin broadcasts, recorded by the United Press in New York, urged the Germans to put complete faith in the Nazis, work a little longer and refuse to listen to Allied words, such as swayed Italy.

"There is only one possibility with which the Allies could win, namely: if by a trick they succeed in separating the nation and the government," Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels wrote in his mouthpiece, Das Reich. ". . . We never will submit to enemy force."

Berlin described at length a special "war production council" held at the "invitation" of Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering at which Munitions Minister Albert Speer promised that if Germans would wait there would be a "surprise" defense against air raids.

"The entire people . . . must remember they must hold out only for a surveyable period of time," Speer said. "The strength of our defense is increasing. We will hit back. Until then the order of the day must be: 'keep silent and work.'"

Part of the council's alleged purpose was to expand war production, including aircraft, but the broadcast said "the central theme" was air defense. Top Nazi airmen attended.

3 ORDERED TO BE IN COURT

Fourth Motorist Posts Bond After Being Cited For Traffic Violation.

Three motorists who were taken into custody yesterday and this morning by police and state highway patrolmen for traffic violations were told to report for hearings Saturday, while a fourth posted $16.30 bond and was released.

Cited by police this morning for driving 44 miles an hour on South Main street, Hobart L. Pringle, 19 Leppo lane, was ordered to appear in municipal court at 9:30 a. m. Saturday.

Bernard G. Davis, Mansfield R. D. 2, was arrested yesterday on U. S. Route 42 northeast of the city for driving with a temporary permit and unaccompanied by a licensed driver. State highway patrolmen who apprehended him said he had been using the temporary driver's permit since May. His case will be heard Saturday afternoon in Ashland police court.

Also scheduled for hearing Saturday in Ashland is a speeding charge against Francis Marion Dinges, 130 West Third street, who, patrolmen said, was riding his motorcycle 70 miles an hour on U. S. Route 42 last night.

Charles H. Dickson, Erie, Pa., cited by patrolmen for speeding, waived hearing after posting $16.30 bond in Mansfield municipal court.

TALKS TO CLUB

Mansfield Soldier Relates Combat Experiences.

Pfc. Carl L. Robinson, whose Mansfield address is 196 Buckingham street, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Kiwanis club Thursday noon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Pfc. Robinson, a member of the artillery is home on furlough from North Africa where he took part in four major engagements. He traced his army life from basic training at Fort Bragg through his convoy trip to Ireland and his part in the fighting in the African theater.

In the question period following his talk it was brought out that the equipment for this war is different from other wars, the mode of fighting is different, but the soldier and his slant on the war are the same.

WELDERS TIE UP WAR WORK

Go on Strike at Detroit Steel Company.

DETROIT —(INS)— Vital war production at the Detroit Steel Products company was tied up today when 125 UAW-CIO welders in the marine and bridge department went on strike.

A company spokesman was unable to define the trouble, but said it was presumed to be over the management-union contract. A union statement was not immediately available.

Unless the dispute is settled quickly hundreds of other workers were expected to leave their benches.

DOWN TO 38

It was almost cold enough to frost again this morning when the mercury fell to 38 degrees in Mansfield, but no frost damage was reported in the city area.

The weatherman said it will be chilly again tonight, but there was no forecast of frost, and warmer weather is expected to move into the state late tonight or Saturday morning. The temperature stood at 55 at noon today as compared with the high of 66 degrees yesterday.

HONOR MOTHERS

Mothers of the members of Brownie Troop 2 at Brinkerhoff school will be guests of honor at a tea given by the troop Monday from 4 to 5 p. m. at the home of the troop leader, Mrs. E. L. Becker, 130 Dunham avenue.

Tomorrow the Brownies will prepare for the event when they assemble at their troop room to make cookies under the supervision of Mrs. Becker and Mrs. C. D. Heaton.

250 ATTEND 'OPEN HOUSE'

Inspect J. A. C. Recreation Center; Appeal Renewed For Furniture Donations.

More than 250 Mansfield parents took the opportunity to look over the Junior Association of Commerce's new recreation center, Playteen, when open house was held at the center last night.

Coming at their leisure to view the center, the parents expressed their approval of the project to J.A.C. members. Some indicated they would donate needed furniture for the center.

J.A.C. officials said today the most urgent need is for davenports and floor lamps and it is their hope they may be located and installed before the formal opening Saturday night.

Playteen will be initiated by its members Saturday night with an orchestra providing the music for dancing in place of the "juke box" which will be used in the future. The Jaycee is furnishing corsages and boutonniers for the members of the student governing council for the occasion.

Judging from the number of memberships already sold, J.A.C. members estimated nearly 300 high school age youngsters will attend the formal opening.

HITS LARDER

Lend-Lease Takes More Food From U. S. This year.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Lend-lease exports of food will take a "somewhat higher" proportion of the country's total supply this year then the 6 per cent shipped abroad in 1942, Lend-Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, jr., reported today.
